

Gas shortage blamed for lay-off of 1,300 steel workers

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. said today it will idle 1,300 workers immediately and 500 others in the near future because of a cut-back in its natural gas supplies. The company said the plants affected produce heat-treated pressure tubing, drill casings and drill collars used in oil and gas production. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger denied an appeal by U.S. Steel late Monday to forestall the curtailment. The nation's largest steel producer had asked the chief justice to stay a Federal Power Commission order approving the cutback set for 5 p.m. Monday, but he denied the request and gave no explanation for his decision. "Pending further review, we are in the process of shutting down those operations affected by the natural gas curtailment," a company spokesman said today. He said the 1,300 employees would be laid off immediately, and 500 others would be idled at a later, unspecified time. Plants affected include heat treating and annealing operations at the company's National Duquesne Works, Homestead Works, Wheel and Axle plant at McKees Rocks and Irvin Works.

Annealing is a form of heat treating, which imparts important qualities to steel. Steel production at the plants will be cut by about 90,000 tons a month, the company said. On Dec. 16, the FPC approved a curtailment plan proposed by Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. It is designed to save natural gas and encourage conversion to other fuels.

But U.S. Steel said there is no substitute fuel available for heat treating and annealing.

Survived on frost scrapings

BROOKINGS, S.D. (AP)—Richard Bielski says his only nourishment during the 40 hours he was trapped in his snow-bound car was frost he scraped from the windshield and some candies he had in the vehicle.

"I spaced them out because I had no idea how long I'd be there," the former Minnehaha County state's attorney said Monday from his hospital bed here.

Bielski, whose legs were frozen, was trapped in his car late Friday when it slid from Interstate 29 some 35 miles north of Sioux Falls and into five feet of snow. The Sioux Falls man said he could not open the doors of his car and that when the battery of his car went dead several hours later he was unable to open the automatic windows.

"I was sitting in the car with very little oxygen," Bielski said. "I don't know how I ever made it. Only the good Lord knows..."

Indians stall on negotiations

GRESHAM, Wis. (AP)—A band of 45 armed Menominee Indians say they will not participate in negotiations until Friday to end their takeover of an estate owned by a Roman Catholic religious order.

Meanwhile, clergymen sought to ease tensions among whites in the area who are said to be angered by what they consider authorities' leniency toward the occupants.

The Menominees, who took over the Roman Catholic Alexian Brothers' former novitiate Jan. 1, closed the door on early resumption of talks Monday after unidentified snowmobilers slipped by National Guard checkpoints.

After the snowmobilers drew a warning shot from a Menominee sentry, guard officials tightened security in the inner ring surrounding the 64-room mansion. The Indians said they believed the snowmobilers were white vigilantes determined to end the occupation by force.

The Indians are demanding that the estate be turned over to the Menominees for use as a hospital, clinic or alcoholism treatment center.

Rentschler to make good $300,000

CHICAGO (AP)—A federal judge has ordered the former Illinois campaign manager for Richard Nixon to pay more than $300,000 for a bad loan.

William H. Rentschler, who also is under indictment for mail fraud, was ordered Monday by U.S. District Court Judge Richard B. Austin to pay $287,232 plus interest of $48,152 to Citizens National Bank of Laurel, Md.

Rentschler, who was president of Photo Magnetic Systems Inc., Bethesda, Md., had personally guaranteed the 1971 bank loan to the company, which defaulted in 1973.

Rentschler, who headed Richard Nixon's presidential campaign in Illinois in 1968, was indicted in 1973 on charges that he defrauded 25 banks and three other financial institutions of more than $1 million.

Playboy executive found dead

CHICAGO (AP)—The executive assistant to Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner has been found dead of an apparent drug overdose.

Bobbie Arnstein, 34, whose body was found in a hotel room Monday, was recently convicted on federal charges of conspiring with two men to distribute cocaine.

She had received a 15-year prison sentence, pending a 90-day psychiatric examination.

While appealing the conviction, Miss Arnstein had returned to work for Hefner.

A federal grand jury has been investigating the charges that narcotics have been used at Hefner's mansions in Chicago and Beverly Hills, Calif. Several employees of Hefner's $200-million corporate empire of magazines, hotels, clubs and films appeared before the grand jury in Chicago in December.

Crawford had told newsmen he did not mean that Hefner knew of the use of drugs or condoned or distributed them.

Police said they did not know whether Miss Arnstein's overdose was accidental. They said she checked into the Maryland Hotel Saturday under the name of Roberta Hillman. She gave the home address of Shirley Hillman, a friend who once worked with her at the Playboy mansion.

A driver's license in the name of Roberta Arnstein, listing the Playboy mansion's address, was found in the room. Her body was discovered by a hotel engineer sent to ask her to pay rent for a second day's occupancy.

CIA investigation gets confusing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Rockefeller commission on the CIA appears confused over how far it intends to go in investigating Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller first indicated to reporters that the commission did not have enough time or staff to investigate information volunteered by former CIA agents. However, Rockefeller's office issued a statement that the commission "would welcome any specific, factual information from individuals, especially former or present members of the CIA, relating to domestic activities of the CIA."

U.S. is out to sell airplanes

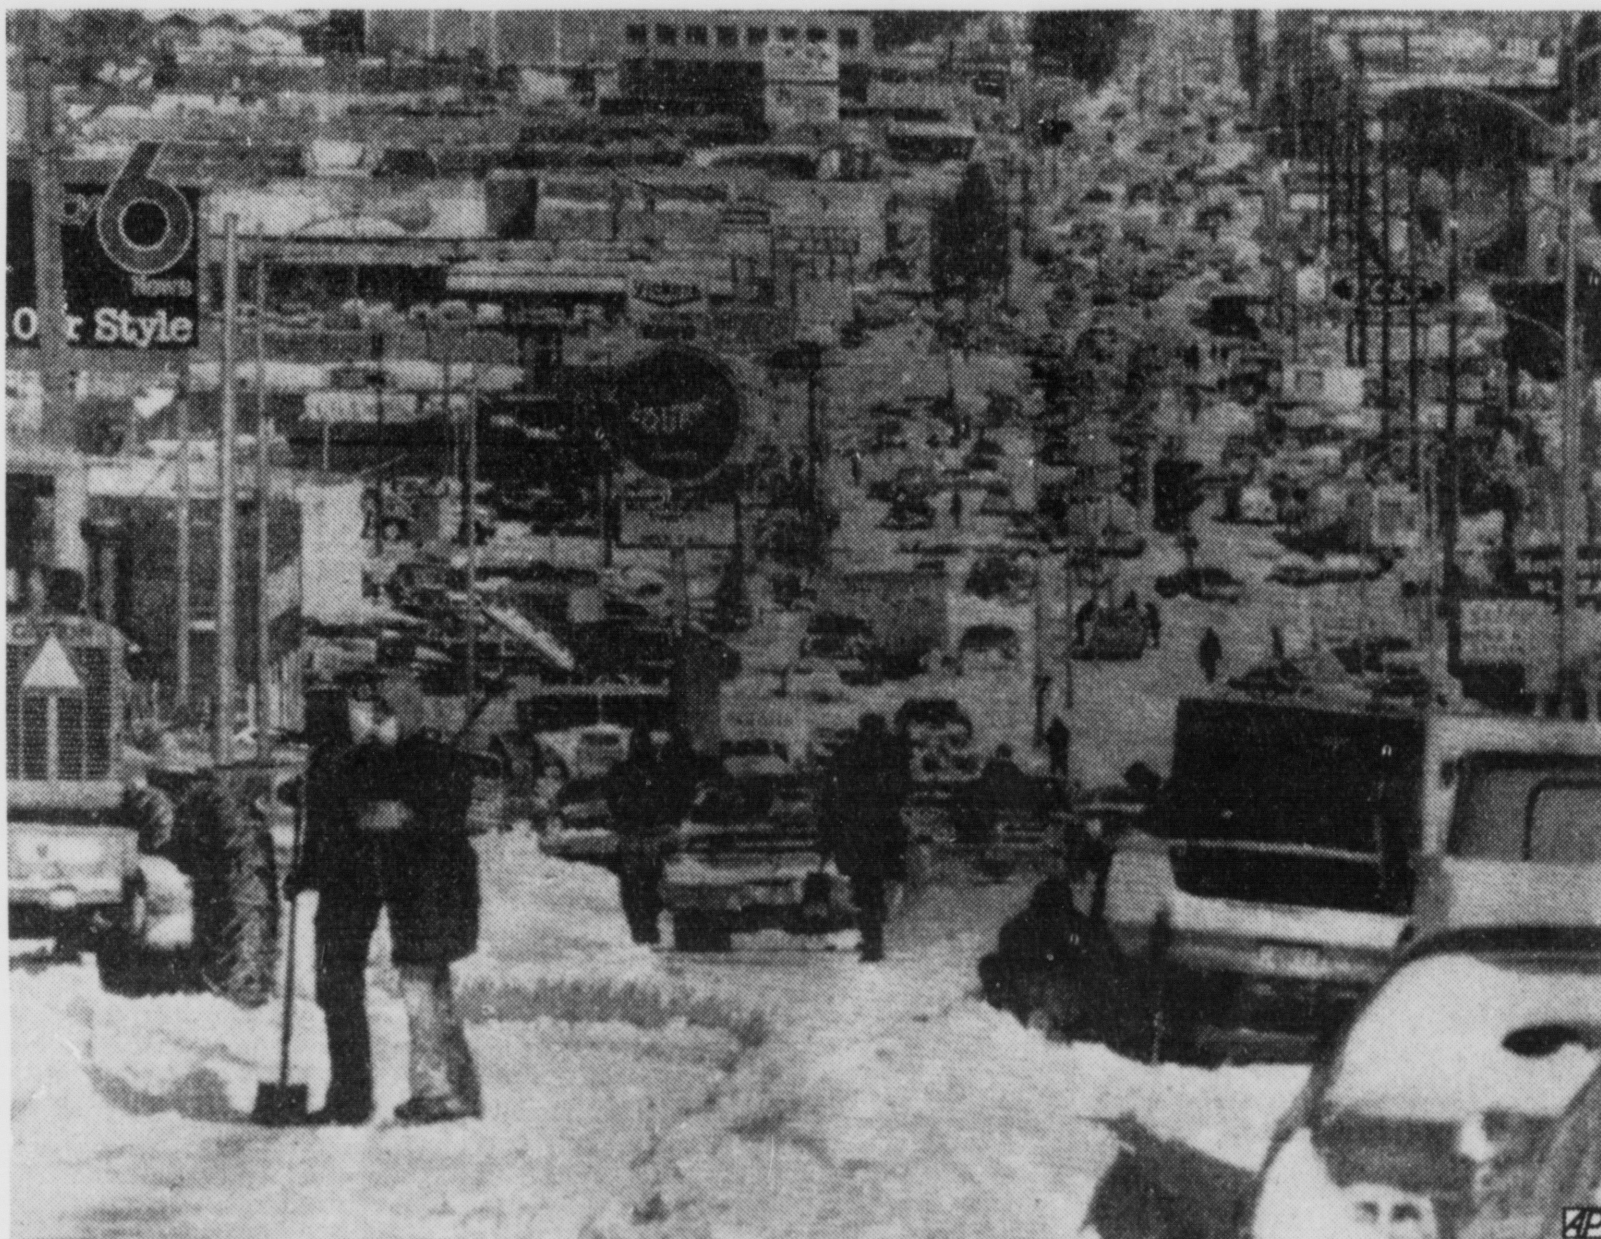

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is intensifying its sales pitch to four NATO nations, now that the Pentagon has decided on the 1,500-mile-an-hour YF16 as the Air Force's new lightweight plane. A 16-man team of Pentagon and State Department officials is in Brussels prepared to deal with Belgian, Dutch, Norwegian and Danish authorities who are shopping for 350 planes to replace their aging U.S.-built F104s.

Ford wants to spoil our appetite

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford has proposed to spoil the nation's petroleum appetite with an $18.2-billion price hike, but has threatened oil-import quotas if higher prices don't cut demand. Ford's proposals would increase the price of gasoline and fuel oils around five cents per gallon and the price of natural gas about 37 cents per thousand cubic feet, a 32 percent increase in the average price of residential gas.

Hanoi bombings bring accusations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States says recent heavy fighting in South Vietnam appears "to reflect a decision by Hanoi to seek once again to impose a military solution in Vietnam." The United States formally accused North Vietnam of violating the 1973 cease-fire in a note released Monday.

Permanent tax cut sought for lower income families

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford will ask Congress for a permanent $16.5 billion a year cut in individual income taxes with reductions heavily favoring lower income groups, his press secretary, Ron Nessen, said Tuesday.

In addition, Nessen said, Ford will seek a reduction in the maximum corporate income tax rate from 48 per cent to 42 per cent, a cut that would cost the Treasury an estimated $6 billion a year in revenue.

The press secretary spelled out in some detail the President's plan for permanent tax cuts and other adjustments to offset the inflow of $30 billion a year that would result if his plan to increase excises and tariffs on crude oil go into effect.

In addition to proposing sharp reductions in individual and corporate income tax receipts, Ford also will present a plan to make direct federal payments of $2 billion a year — $80 for each adult in the nation — to all those whose incomes are so low they owe no taxes, Nessen said.

The President, Nessen said, will also call for increasing to $5,600 a year from $4,300 the income on which no taxes would be due from an average family of four. There would be other increases in what is called the "low-income allowance" all along the line.

Nessen reported Ford, if Congress approves, intends to distribute an additional $2 billion annually under revenue sharing programs to state and local governments. These payments would be designed to offset their higher fuel costs. In similar fashion, the federal government would retain $3 billion from its added revenues from excises and tariffs to counter-balance its own higher fuel outlays.

Finally, Nessen said, individual taxpayers who install storm windows or insulation in their homes could deduct 15 per cent of the cost, up to a maximum of $150 a year, from their tax bills. He said this would cost the Treasury about $500 million a year.

If Congress goes along with the Presidential blueprint, Nessen said all the tax cuts and other changes would apply to all 1975 income, and of course, all income in future years.

The press secretary said the administration figures that excises and tariffs would reach a permanent level of $2 a barrel and would increase the average family's annual fuel costs by $250. He said gasoline prices would be expected to increase by 10 cents a gallon.

Early enactment of an antirecession tax cut appears certain because Ford and the heavily Democratic 94th Congress agree that such a step is necessary. But they appear divided on how much of the reduction should go to lower-and-middle-income families.

Questions answered on economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford's new economic program would include something for just about everybody, including tax cuts covering both 1974 and 1975, if Congress approves his plans.

Here are answers to some of the questions that may arise about the program: Q. Would everybody get a tax cut, and how much? A. There would be a 12 per cent across-the-board cut in 1974 taxes, up to a maximum of $1,000 for any one taxpayer. The total rebate would amount to about $12 billion for individuals, the President said.

For example, an American with 1974 taxes of $2,000 would receive a refund of $240, or 12 percent. But a person with taxes of $9,000 would get a $1,080 refund, instead of $1,180, which would be 12 per cent.

Q. How would this be paid? Would I deduct it from my 1974 taxes when I file my return? A. Ford said the refund would be paid separately in two payments, half in May and half in September. Taxpayers should file their tax returns by April 15 in the normal way as if there were no 12 per cent rebate. Their rebate will be sent later.

Q. How high would energy prices go with the new taxes? A. The administration has not yet disclosed this, but officials say privately the increase could range from five to seven cents a gallon for both gasoline and home heating oil.

Q. You said there was something for everybody. How about the low-income persons, people on welfare and Social Security, who pay no taxes? A. Ford said they will receive cash payments for 1975. Although he didn't spell this out, other sources said the payments could amount to about $80 per person.

In addition, a White House spokesman said Ford will announce a doubling of the low-income allowance from $1,300 to $2,600, which should remove many low-income persons from tax rolls entirely.

Q. What are the chances that Congress will approve Ford's tax cut proposals? Isn't it true that they can't go into effect unless Congress approves? A. That's true, but members of Congress from both parties appear virtually unanimous in favor of tax relief for Americans. Substantial tax cuts of some kind are a virtual certainty, although they might not take the form the President wants.

House Democrats, for example, announced their own program Monday calling for a $10 billion to $20 billion tax cut, for low and middle income Americans. Under Ford's plan, upper-income persons would receive the same break. So there is some disagreement on emphasis.

Unanimous vote by county board

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

On a unanimous roll call vote, the Lee County Board today agreed to contribute $90,000, less engineering expenses incurred by the county, toward the rebuilding of the Peoria Avenue Bridge.

—On a 22 to 5 vote, rejected Sheriff Ray Nehring's request for $6,485 to be matched with $5,000 in his budget for applying for a state grant to set up a highway safety division.

—Adopted the sheriff's Merit Commission rules report subject to amendment after a report from the Executive Committee.

—Told the County Properties Committee to proceed with submitting plans for board approval for moving the board meeting room to the third floor court room and for remodeling the boiler room for storage of books and mower and snow plow attachment and the tractor used by Courthouse custodians.

—Set a county policy for spending 20 per cent of next year's federal revenue sharing funds for social service programs.

—Directed the Executive Committee and State's Atty. Patrick Ward to meet with a lawyer for the Frank Thornber Co., to negotiate a settlement for cancellation of the contract for purchasing the video voting machines.

The Finance Committee reported after meeting with the Road and Bridge Committee to consult the amount of funds in the County Highway Department, it recommended the county pay the city $90,000 for rebuilding the Peoria Avenue Bridge, less any engineering funds incurred by the county, and that $60,000 be transferred from the County Highway Fund to the County Special Bridge Fund and that the amount be paid back over a three-year term.

Ronald Brandau, county superintendent of highways, explained the balance in the highway fund is "quite high," and transferring funds from it will not impair the needed road work to be done in the county.

William Kant, District 1, demanded to know why Dixon Township had not been approached to help provide funds for this bridge repair.

Robert Burrs, District 3, Dixon Township supervisor, did not answer him but said the township's taxpayers had paid in more than half a million dollars to the county's special bridge fund over the past 20 years and "I know of only three bridges which have been repaired in Dixon Township during this time and cost the county only $20,000."

John Stouffer, county clerk, corrected Burrs, "The more than $560,000 you mentioned were paid by taxpayers in the city of Dixon, I worked up these figures."

"The whole township has paid more than this into the county fund."

The resolution passed without a dissenting vote, with William Rogers, District 3, absent.

The Finance Committee also brought in a recommendation the sheriff's request for funds to apply for a grant for a highway safety division be rejected.

The committee said the project will cost the county $30,000 annually when the state ceases to fund the program and the county is not in a financial condition to assume this cost at this time.

At the December meeting of the board, Sheriff Nehring told the board he has $5,000 for matching funds in his budget to obtain state grants but will need $11,485 to apply for a highway safety grant and asked the board to consider appropriating the needed $6,485 so he could apply for this project.

Also at the December meeting, Francis Ege, District 2, a former member of the Sheriff's Merit Commission, raised certain questions about the political affiliations of those appointed to the commission.

report of these rules and placed them on file and because of this they had no legal status.

Ward said the board should have accepted or rejected the report of the committee which submitted the commission's rules.

Winston McReynolds, District 3, complained he had just received this report and was in no way ready or able to intelligently vote on the recommendations.

Sheriff Nehring replied he has a vacancy on his staff and has scheduled an examination but it cannot legally be given unless the rules are adopted.

Ege noted the commission had functioned since 1971 without approval and suggested it could go on for one more month.

Ward reminded the board "All actions by the commission up to now are illegal," and pointed out there is a difference in permitting an agency to operate illegally due to an oversight and agreeing to let it take action illegally with knowledge of the board.

David Gusse, District 1, made the motion to accept the report and refer it to a committee for review for amendments to be made at another time.

It was referred to the Executive Committee.

Stouffer noted it is necessary to store collectors' books from the time the county was organized some 150 years ago and that some of these had been stored at the County Highway Garage.

He stressed the inconvenience of these arrangements for those who must use these records and suggested the Courthouse boiler room be remodeled for storage of these records.

Stouffer also noted the custodians must bring the mower and snowplow attachments into the Courthouse for storage along with the small tractor and suggested an outside elevator be considered to lower this equipment into the boiler room for storage.

The Finance Committee also recommended the county establish a policy to set aside 20 per cent of this year's federal revenue sharing funds, $60,000, for social service programs.

McReynolds, committee chairman, noted social service programs are one of the highest priorities established for the use of these funds by the federal government, and "This board had not used any of its revenue sharing funds for this purpose."

The proposal was adopted. Ward read a letter from (See PEORIA on page 8)

CIA reports 'overblown'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Published reports of domestic spying by the Central Intelligence Agency are overblown, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said today.

Schlesinger, who headed the spy agency for six months in 1973, said he had learned of CIA domestic activities "that are indeed in retrospect to be regretted and that were inappropriate."

However, he added, that "there were not acts in such number or so surprising as to be a source of national turmoil."

Schlesinger commented at a Pentagon press conference in response to questions about a statement he made Monday that the CIA had committed a small number of misdemeanors over the past 20 years. The secretary said he had not meant to use the term misdemeanors, which he said carried a legal connotation he had not intended.

He said the Rockefeller Commission, which is looking into CIA activities, would have to determine whether any of the activities were in fact illegal.

Schlesinger also indicated that the CIA does not maintain files on 10,000 American citizens gathered by surveillance within the United States. However, he said the agency does maintain files on the overseas activities of U.S. citizens.

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The new Arab-Israeli strategic balance in the explosive Middle East is, unlike double-faced Janus, four faced. Seldom realized, it embraces psychological, economic and political components as well as military.

The military face is the arms competition. The resources devoted to it have no parallel elsewhere. And the results of the October 1973 war are speeding up the momentum of the race even further.

Like Alice in Wonderland, the countries have to run faster and faster just to stay where they are.

In Israel and Egypt alone, military outlays have absorbed some $24 billion, not including the tremendous expenditures caused by the 1973 war. About $9 billion were spent in the last three years.

Countries procuring offsetting armaments is a continuous action-reaction process, always at faster rates and higher costs. Each side obviously aims, not at equilibrium on a "no war, no peace" basis, but at achieving a preponderance of power.

In Israel and the Arab world alike, the heavy losses in the 1973 war have been recouped. As a result, the military instability is increased. So is the tension. So is the importance—vital—of the other components.

In the Arab world, pride is psychologically important—and often decisive. Israel's 1973 military superiority did not dissuade Egypt and Syria from trying to alter the status quo by armed force. Moreover, they did so when it was widely agreed (and most certainly within Israel) that Israel's military superiority was sufficient to rule out an Arab attack.

Both the Israel and U.S. intelligence pulled a colossal boner. Totally contrary to the Israeli and U.S. stated judgment, the Arabs were able to seize the military initiative—a profoundly important requirement in war.

Israel's quick and complete 1967 victory in what Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser called "the black six June days" supplied the Israelis with this calamitous misjudgment.

At dawn after the first night, many Egyptian officers commandeered available jeeps, trucks and even ambulances and deserted the troops. They fled to their safety to—and across—the Suez Canal.

3rd time around for Arab power

By DON OAKLEY

In administering a profound shock to the complacent West by virtue of its control of the lion's share of the world's store of oil, the Moslem world is repeating something it did twice before in history.

The first time occurred immediately after the message of Mohammed captured pagan Araby, recalls a thoughtful article in a recent Business Bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Co.

Either because of spiritual exhilaration or some inexplicable change in their genes, the formerly placid Arabs embarked on a series of successful military adventures. In a comparatively short time, they subdued most of the Mediterranean littoral, overran the Iberian Peninsula and scaled the Pyrenees with the aim of making what is now France subject to Islam.

The decisive Battle of Tours in A.D. 732 turned the tide, aroused the West out of the sleep of the Dark Ages and ushered in the short-lived empire of Charlemagne.

Some seven centuries later, while the Florentines and others were absorbed in the cultural achievements of the Renaissance, the Turks captured Christian Constantinople. The blockade of the Bosphorus cut off the flow of spices from the Far East, an indispensable product in preserving meat and making it edible for aristocratic taste.

Italy and France were virtually helpless, but Portugal and Spain, being maritime powers, moved to overcome the challenge. The former

In 1973, however, the Egyptians seized the military initiative.

Egyptian President Anwar el-Sadat himself told me that, culminating the rearming of Israel by the United States, when Washington sent Israel 48 more Phantom jets in early 1973, he decided to go to war.

President Sadat said that he made a deal with Syria to simultaneously attack the Golan Heights. At 2 p.m. Oct. 6, 1973 they caught Israel—and the Egyptian and Syrian people—by surprise. Incidentally, Egypt's President told me that his 24-year-old half-brother Atef died at the controls of a Sukhoi jet fighter-bomber.

The Egyptians seized the military initiative with such relative success that they crossed the Suez Canal (to the astonishment of the Israelis), gained a foothold in the Sinai and inflicted terribly severe manpower and equipment losses on the Israelis.

A psychological equilibrium has been reestablished.

The surprise and shock is directly related to the fall of the government of then-premier, Golda Meir. Nor is it a coincidence that the Israel coalition chose as her successor Premier Yitshak Rabin. Rabin was the most prominent and vocal critic of the government's "it can't happen" contention.

Still no other face, unlike double-faced Janus, is that, from the Egyptian viewpoint, the 1973 war worked where nothing else did.

President Sadat told me that Egypt has experienced enormous frustrations on the diplomatic front. This began with predecessor Nasser's acceptance of the U.S.-engineered cease-fire ending the War of Attrition in August 1970. It culminated in the United Nations Security Council debates of June-July 1973.

But the October war quickly sparked a worldwide sense of urgency, whereas Sadat had been unable to achieve this for three years.

It catalyzed a measure of coordinated Arab action that produced the selective oil embargo and energy crisis, brought the superpowers to the brink of confrontation and forced the United States into intensive diplomatic efforts, previously shunned.

The lesson is clear. Should negotiations wane or stall, thereby freezing the present unacceptable status quo, renewed war is all but inevitable.

courageously developed a sea route through unknown waters around the Cape of Good Hope and across the Indian Ocean, unmolested by the land-bound Moslems. The return cargoes yielded a handsome reward for the entrepreneurs who had taken the risks.

The Spaniards chose a more imaginative and much more hazardous "Project Independence." The result was the discovery of the Western Hemisphere. Despite the rudimentary means of communication and transportation, untold riches began to flow from the New World to the Old.

The third "invasion" by the Moslems has been accomplished without their lifting a single sword, and it is to be hoped that the stricture in the "spice" lines will be overcome without the bloodshed that was the case in the two earlier conquests.

For a time it appeared that the major oil-consuming nations would become victims of a divide-and-conquer strategy of self-defense. There is now some promise that a formal or informal OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) will come into being to challenge the OPEC, the oil exporters. Its first objective is to negotiate a common formula for sharing petroleum supplies equitably.

For the short run, conservation of energy is most urgent, but the process has hardly begun. Meanwhile, we modern "Portuguese" have an Alaskan pipeline under construction. The northern Europeans are plumbing the depths of the North Sea.

Getting more from our tax $$$$$$$$$$

It's no secret that government has become the nation's biggest business, employing nearly 13-million people and accounting for 22 per cent of the gross national product.

Spending by state and local governments alone increased 80 per cent between 1968 and 1972, and at least up until the current recession hit they were adding about 450,000 employees each year.

The country's taxpayers are demanding more services from federal, state and local governments than ever before—yet paradoxically they are screaming louder than ever about how much it's costing.

Why? The answer is simple, says James Hayes: "More than ever, the American taxpayer feels he is being overcharged."

Hayes is president of the American Management Associations (AMA), a nonprofit organization that conducts worldwide management training programs for more than 100,000 business and government executives annually.

Few would deny that there is considerable room for improvement in the efficiency of government. The National Commission on Productivity has projected that an annual productivity improvement of just one per cent could reduce government expenditures by almost $5 billion by 1985.

There are pockets of progress across the country. Here and there, innovative programs are saving cities hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. But widespread inefficiency persists, and the reasons that stand out are the inherent difficulty of managing modern government and the shortage of qualified managers in government.

Probably little can be done about the former, but there may be an answer to the latter: Apply the proven management techniques of business to government. This is the basis of a new training service being offered to government by the Professional Institute, a unit of AMA.

The AMA has conducted management training programs for such public organizations and groups as the governor's cabinet of South Dakota, the Massachusetts State Board of Education, the personnel officer of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, City Clerks Assn. of Colorado and the cities of Richmond and Alexandria, Va.

When the people demand more and better services for their money, it is not really a paradox, says Hayes. What they are asking is that governments explain and justify in terms every citizen can understand what benefits are being received from the dollars and man-hours invested—in a word, productivity.

And the key to improving productivity in government, he contends, is through more professional management.

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

If long-range plans presented Wednesday night to the Dixon Board of Education by Superintendent of Schools Stanley Weber are realized, Dixon High School may be turned into a junior high and a new high school built.

Directors of Amboy Public Hospital and members of the steering committee decided Wednesday night to make an all-out effort to keep the hospital open.

Stockholders of the Dixon National Bank Tuesday learned that the bank has assets of more than $21 million, which is a new high record for any financial institution in the history of Dixon.

With the first date for filing petitions for candidates coming up next Monday, considerable activity is reported among many aspirants for public office. There are a few who already have petitions in circulation, and the names of numerous others are being put forward by their friends and are urged to run.

Minor changes in the sick leave plan, awarding of a contract for a heater for Lincoln School, and a discussion relative to the purchase of new uniforms for the high school cheerleaders constituted a main business at a rather routine meeting of the Dixon Board of Education last night.

Communion at the Presbyterian Church next Sabbath will be held. A Preparatory Service will be held Saturday at 2:15 p.m.

Remember the lecture at the Court House next Saturday evening, on the "Early Days of Illinois." Only twenty-five cents admission, and ladies free.

Kissifeller's new foreign policy

Do not imagine, all you who rely on the strength of it, that America's foreign policy is out of the wood. It is not. The direct entanglement in Vietnam may be finished (although the still-just-American-supported war there is not).

The antiwar marches inside America, the subversion and violence, the American spying on American, which attended that distant and not altogether relevant Asian conflict, have been diminished.

The Watergate affair, final horror, may be just about done with, and President Nixon is already gone. But the sapping effect that all those body blows, over all those years, have had on America lingers on.

American administrations are no longer free to put through important acts of foreign policy without haggling over their details with Congress, often in an atmosphere of public rancor. That is the true price which the West has paid and still pays for Vietnam and Watergate: the presidential license to act abroad, swiftly and decisively, has been lost.

That is why Henry Kissinger, the secretary of State, has just spent a busman's holiday in Puerto Rico with the new Vice President, Nelson Rockefeller. Between them, and with President Ford's sanction, they have been preparing a counter-attack, a bid to fight for a clear expression of national interest once again in American foreign policy; to outflank those who wish to strip Washington not only of its residual dirt but also of its leadership in world affairs; and to establish a working relationship with not only a much younger, and more spirited, Congress, but one that is worse led by its remaining older men than in the calmer Eisenhower years.

The next few weeks will be Rockefeller's and Kissinger's executive honeymoon. Much often comes from such early days. But two criteria should be applied to the torrent of speeches, of congressional breakfasts, of leaks, of press conferences and of stunning newspaper interviews that will now tumble over the cataract of American self-doubt.

First, foreigners and Americans alike must hope that the Rockefeller-Kissinger crusade will succeed. It has seldom been less rhetorical or more realistic for those of us who still depend on American power and leadership to say with Kissinger in his Newsweek interview that "it is the absolute duty of leaders to tell the people what they believe is necessary. You can make your life easier by not putting tough choices to the public. But then, when the inevitable catastrophe occurs, you have lost not only credibility but legitimacy."

But that American public is skeptical. So a second question will have to be asked of each foreign policy initiative that Ford, Rockefeller and Kissinger make: how relevant is it to the health of the West, how practical is it as a venture in which to involve America? For the lesson of the Guam doctrine that President Nixon enunciated in 1969 still holds: where American help is enlisted, as in Vietnam, without conviction or in a lost cause, it is America and its allies that lose in the end.

Kissinger's answer to that second challenge is either simply brave or it is foolhardy—only time (and his own judgment next summer about whether to stay on through the storm as secretary of State) will tell which. The Kissinger answer maintains, at least in theory, that America's and the alliance's interest is unavoidably at stake in almost every foreign policy thrust, every call for American aid.

If America once reneges on a commitment, argues Kissinger, then its force as an ally will bit by bit disappear. This argument will be deployed early as 1975 unfolds:

—By early February, Kissinger is determined to persuade Congress to delay once again its threatened embargo on military aid to Turkey. To do so, he will need to point to signs of progress in the stalled talks about a settlement in Cyprus. Without this, he will not be able to sustain the successful policy switch he made before Christmas to the contention that Turkey is an American ally that must not, whatever its cussedness over Cyprus, be let down.

—By April the government of South Vietnam, its military aid from America cut back, will be running out of bullets. Kissinger will want Congress to top the Saigon arsenal up again—and it is a safe bet that a very large segment of Congress, including most of the 75 highly active new members of the House Democratic caucus, will either resist him or exact a heavy price for anything more than a few token cargo-loads of fresh arms.

That price is likely to be a sharpening of the murky distinction between America's military and civilian aid to needy countries.

—By April Kissinger will also be embroiled in the question of the renewal of the two United Nations peace-keeping forces in the Middle East. He will doubtless want to defer until then any return to the Geneva peace conference that might mean once again directly involving Russia in Middle Eastern negotiations.

And to achieve that he will need backing inside America (1) to continue with the agonizingly slow process of the cajoling of Israel to relinquish occupied territory (first in Sinai, then in Golan); (2) to retain the confidence of the Arab leaders; (3) to continue pushing Israel toward bit-by-bit peace, largely by holding over it the threat (not a popular one for any administration to wield in America) that any plunge into war by Israel may finally destroy its automatic right to unquestioning American support; (4) to coax both the Palestinians and the Israelis to recognize, and then talk about, each other's right to exist in security and independence.

—By some time in 1975—nobody is sure how soon—Kissinger has to get his partners in Europe and Japan to agree on a formula for use in bargaining with the OPEC oil producers. And he has to come to understand that his own and the Europeans' plans for dealing with the oil-money problem complement rather than contradict each other.

It is a curious paradox, at a time when Kissinger's personal star is waning, and when American foreign policy has become almost impossible to conduct, that America's ascendancy over Europe should be greater than for many years. It has happened because Europe is still disunited and, unlike America, pretty desperately short of oil.

The snag, once again, is that America will be able to lead even these powerless allies (among whom the most nearly powerful, Helmut Schmidt of West Germany, is in growing political trouble at home) only if its own leaders fully accept the need to restrain America's consumption of energy; and if America itself accepts the notion that high-cost energy is the price for encouraging fresh production of energy from new sources.

The lesson is always the same: without adequate domestic support for an active foreign policy, little can be done by America abroad.

So there is something unreal, if noble, about the all-or-nothing, back-to-the-1950s Rockefeller-Kissinger approach to foreign policy. And indeed it is likely that Kissinger will court rather than confront American opinion (where he is strong) and the brash new men of the new Congress (where he is potentially weak).

Unreal it may seem, but the need for the Rockefeller-Kissinger catechism is very real indeed. That much can be deduced from the first signs of the present worry which appeared during 1974. Take the appeals then made to Kissinger by President Sadat of Egypt, that he should enroll American help on the side of the moderate forces acquiring power in Ethiopia.

It was judged in Washington instead that the baleful eye of Congress would never permit such a fresh American involvement abroad—and so Ethiopia became more liable to drop like an apple into the lap of extremism.

Then there was the helpless American inaction in the Middle East as the Nixon agony played itself out. Israel could not be effectively pressured at such a time into talking to King Hussein of Jordan, with the result that at the Arabs' Rabat conference in October the Palestine Liberation Organization replaced him as the recognized representative of the West Bank Arabs.

Lastly, there were the delays over the American trade bill—a story that started with Leonid Brezhnev openly skeptical in the spring about Nixon's ability to govern, and ended in December with President Ford's inability to extract from Congress more than $300 million of credits for Russia from the Ex-Im Bank.

What incentive, if that continues, will there be for Russia to hold back in the Middle East or for that matter, anywhere else?

America's foreign policy has a central weakness to it that needs to be remedied. Its makers can no longer appeal automatically to rational national interest. So many years of peace and uninterrupted growth, and a wrong turning in Vietnam, have destroyed that.

And the present recession may, at least at first, banish intelligent self-interest even farther.

In its place American foreign policy has to rely for the moment on two frighteningly inadequate supports. Either Americans seem to have to feel a sense of moral mission if they are to permit their leaders to act vigorously abroad.

Or they have to authorize their President to act only within the limits set by the legalistic and formal permits issued by Congress. If Kissinger and his friends can change that, if they can by tact and leadership restore some sense of what it is in America's long-term interest to do, then he will be able to leave the Department of State with a clear conscience whenever he likes.

Better mousetrap; no beaten path

The introduction of highly productive varieties of rice, wheat and other crops—the so-called "green revolution"—which held so much promise of meeting the food needs of the world's expanding population—has been much criticized of late. It's claimed that because of the worldwide shortage of fertilizer, farmers in the developing countries are actually worse off than before.

This is not true, counters soil scientist Robert F. Chandler, former director of the International Rice Research Institute. While the high-yield plants are designed to be responsive to fertilizer, they have other properties bred into them, such as resistance to disease, which gives them the edge over traditional varieties.

"Even without fertilizer," says Chandler, "the high-yielding varieties will yield more."

Another creator of the green revolution argues that the trouble is that, like Christianity, it has never really been tried.

Although 35 per cent of the total wheat area in Asia and 20 per cent of the rice area were planted with high-yield varieties in the 1972-73 season, "this is not enough," says J. George Harrar, president emeritus of the Rockefeller Foundation.

"I feel very frustrated," he is quoted by Science magazine. "It's said that if you build a better mousetrap the world will beat a path to your doorstep. We built a better mousetrap, but people didn't come."

In the meantime, the development of even better plant varieties is being conducted by a host of international research organizations covering all the major crops and regions of the developing world.

Show us a better way, challenges Harrar. "What is the alternative? These supercritics have not got an answer."

Recession has some good points too, says expert

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Austerity is the keynote now. Mayors, governors and the President of the United States espouse it. Individuals practice it, and so do corporations.

If there is anything good that can be said of recession it is that it corrects excesses that creep into practice during easier days. It forces a return to the old virtues, if only temporarily.

Newly elected officials throughout the country are calling for less waste. Individuals are cutting back sharply on their use of credit. Corporations are cutting plans to spend on plants and equipment.

While all these practices will be seen as further evidence of a deterioration in the economy, all of them seem to be periodically necessary in order to bring a disarranged state of finances into better order.

Cities had been overspending their tax bases, many state governments were overloaded with help, and the federal government budget was habitually exceeding revenues by billions of dollars.

Individuals, too, were exceeding their budgets, sometimes merely to buy the things of life but too often because easy credit paved the way. That credit burden is now being reduced.

Corporations were producing goods designed to maintain the high rate of consumer spending, knowing all the while it really couldn't go on forever.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of Public Hearing
In accordance with Section 148a of the "Revenue Act of 1939", notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held at 11:00 o'clock a.m., February 10, 1975, in the Offices of the Department of Local Government Affairs, Room 300, 160 North LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois, for the purpose of taking evidence which may be pertinent to the Department's estimate of the full, fair cash value of locally assessed property in Lee County.

Based on a comparison of assessed valuations, the analysis of property transfers, and other available information, the estimated full, fair cash value of locally assessed property in such county is $235,535,000.

The above estimate was based on no change in locally assessed values by use of an equalization factor of 103 pct. (multiplier .9709).

Frank A. Kirk, Director
Department of Local Government Affairs
State of Illinois

Detroit discovered that. As more austerity is practiced, the rise in consumer prices is almost certain to slow, although actual price cuts are far less likely. Interest rates already are dropping, as loan demand recedes.

But, as Americans remember from other periodic recessions, austerity also can be a painful corrective. Unemployment in December exceeded 7 per cent and is almost certain to approach 8 per cent this spring.

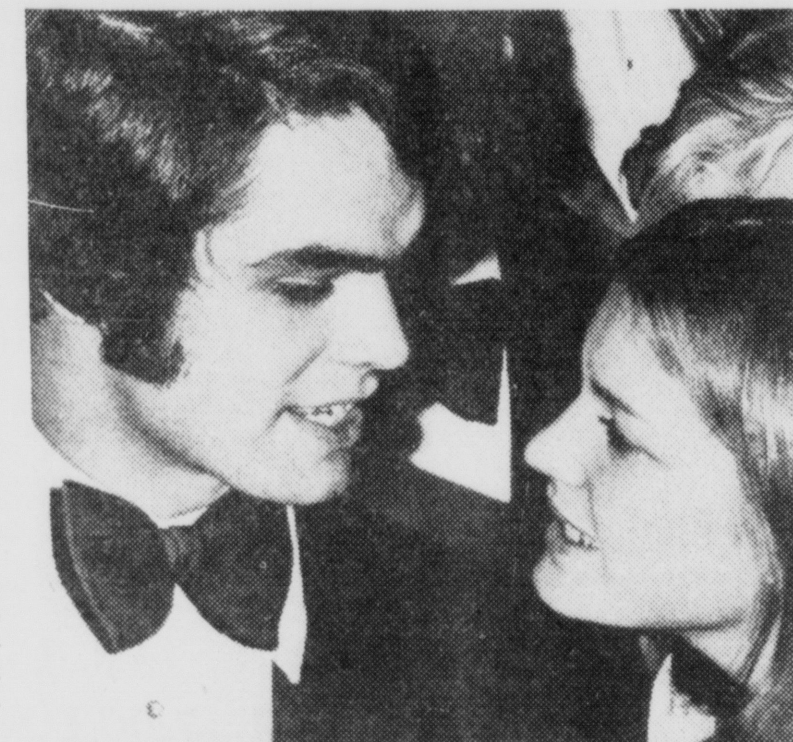

Some economists are revising their forecasts made just a few weeks ago, and almost all the revisions are downward. Some suspect that the consensus of an upturn by late summer may be too optimistic. The anticipated decline in plant and equipment spending, for example, is seen by some, including James Pate, assistant secretary of commerce, as bad news for the second half of the year.

Inevitably, questions are arising about the necessity of such a violent whipsawing of the economy, from peak to valley. Who is responsible? Could greater stability be assured by more effective government policies? The role of the Federal Reserve Board is likely to get attention from Congress. Did the Fed, in its fear of rearing inflation, clamp down too strongly on the availability of money? There are few experts on economic matters, if you judge by the disagreements among the so-called experts.

Somehow, stability remains the most elusive economic quality. Leaders can produce excess or austerity, as they have regularly in the past decade and are likely to continue doing.

STEADY COMPANIONS are Susan Ford, 17-year-old daughter of President Ford, and Gerdner Britt, 18, and a freshman at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The two have reportedly been dating steadily since last year. Secret Service agents tag along on every date.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Jan. 14, the 14th day of 1975. There are 351 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1784, the United States ratified a peace treaty with England, formally ending the American Revolution.

On this date — in 1809, England and Spain formed an alliance against Napoleon Bonaparte.

In 1814, Denmark ceded Norway to Sweden, as one of the provisions of the Treaty of Kiel. In 1907, an earthquake in Jamaica destroyed Kingston and took 1,000 lives.

In 1914, Henry Ford's first assembly line went into operation, vastly reducing the time it took to produce a car.

In 1953, Yugoslavia's parliament elected Premier Tito president, by a vote of 568 to 1.

In 1965, the prime ministers of Ireland and Northern Ireland met, for the first time in 43 years.

Ten years ago: Soprano Jeanette MacDonald died in Houston at the age of 57.

Five years ago: An international effort to fly food and medicine to Biafra after its surrender to Nigeria's central government stalled because of a lack of approval by Nigerian officials.

Is now a good time to buy Furniture and Home Furnishings?

You be the judge:

1. Naturally you're acutely aware of how prices are rising constantly. On everything. But especially on things requiring quantities of raw materials and many man hours to produce them. Furniture and home furnishings fit this category.

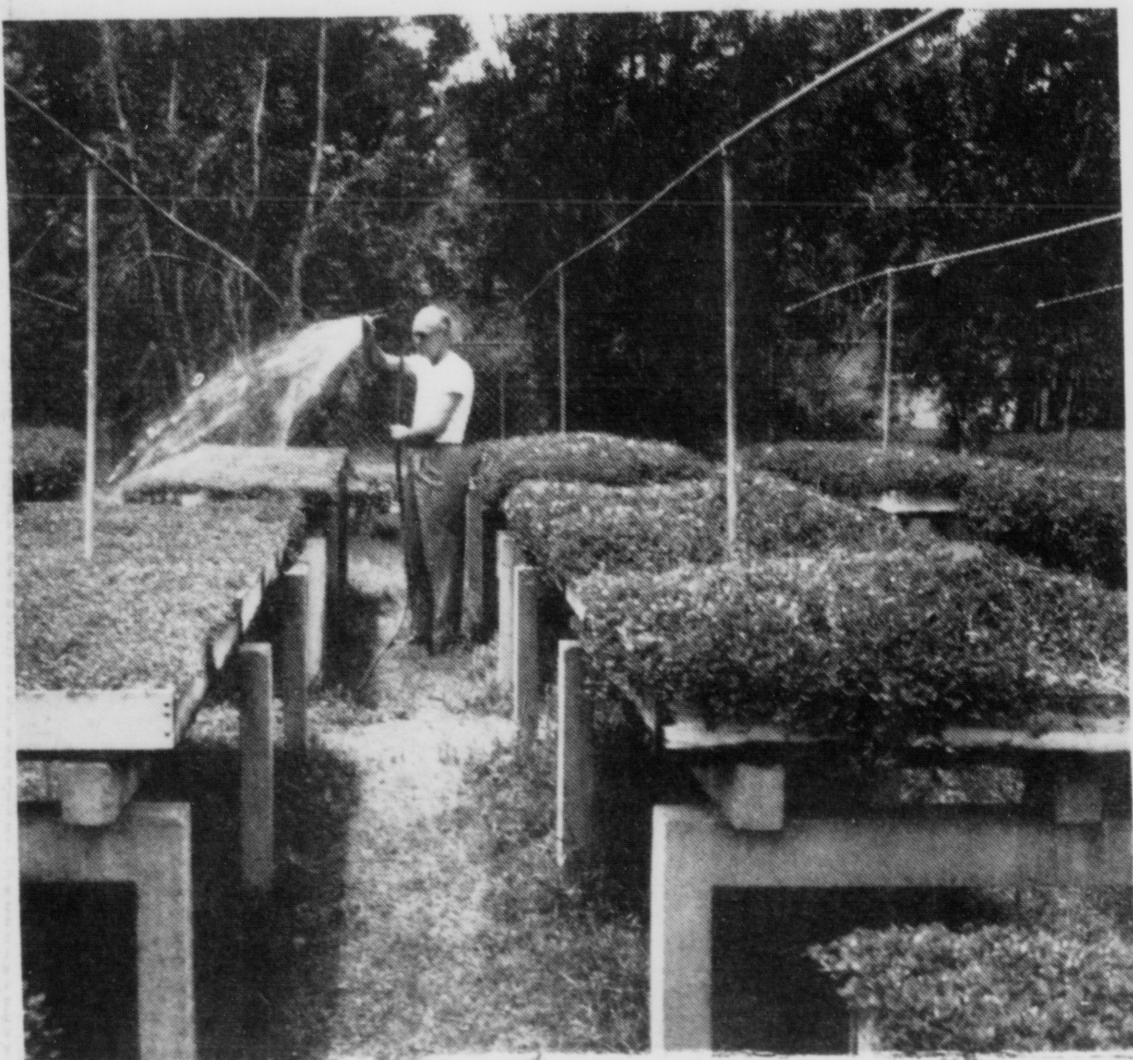

2. As new-home building has declined, the value of improving existing homes has leapt ahead. This makes home improvements like new carpeting, and furniture likely to prove among today's very best long-term investments.

3. As the cost of outside pleasures and entertainments soar out of sight, it becomes ever more important to have a home rich in convenience, pleasure, warmth, and comfort. Actually, whatever adds to these, adds to the family's store of real wealth.

Think how furniture and furnishings can improve your home! Think of hush-plush carpeting, supremely comfortable furniture. Now think of how any and all of these can be yours at these very, very low January Clearance prices. Now you be the judge. Is now a good time to make — to buy furniture and home furnishings? If your answer is "yes!", lovelier.

Have what you want now, today. Take convenient months to pay.

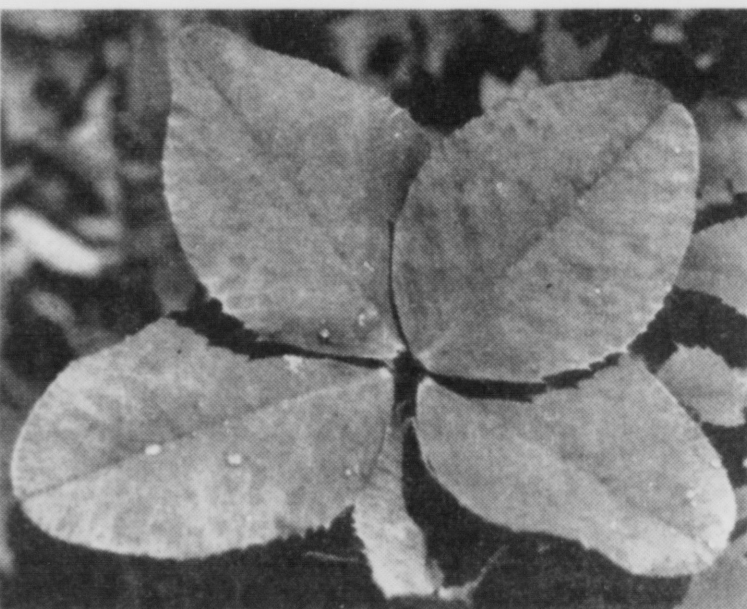

Four-leaf clovers are now harvested like other crops

Carefully watering his pampered crop, Bill Daniels, co-owner and manager of the farm, starts the clover from specially bred cuttings placed on concrete stands with electrified ultraviolet lamps near each stand. The lamps serve a dual purpose: to constantly bathe the delicate plants in light and to kill harmful insects.

AFTER HARVESTING, (above) millions of the four-leaf oddities are sold to greeting card companies and novelty houses. Only the most perfectly formed clover, with petals measuring a minimum of 1 1/8 inches (below) are selected by Daniels and his employees.

Emergency Credit available for farmers

Emergency Credit is available to eligible Carroll, Lee, Ogle, and Whiteside County farmers whose crops were seriously damaged by disaster, according to Leland E. Wright, local Farmers Home Administration county supervisor. He pointed out that heavy rains last spring had flooded growing crops and delayed or prevented plantings. Possibilities for good production from late crops became fewer as the season progressed. Dry weather in July and August and cool September temperatures retarded development so that crops were not mature when frost killed the plants.

Wright noted that many farmers obtained low crop yields, reduced quality due to high moisture content or low test weights, or a combination of these results. Operators who sustained losses from these conditions equal to 10 per cent or more of normal farm production have qualifying losses.

Loans are repayable at 5 per cent interest over periods consistent with the borrowers' earnings up to a five year maximum. Crops, livestock, equipment, or real estate may be offered as security depending upon the size of the loan and other factors. Ability to obtain credit from other sources is not disqualifying.

Wright said his office will calculate the value and percentage of losses if applicants will provide him with information on their yields and production for 1974 and two previous years. Loans are limited by the value of the loss and by the expenses incurred in producing the damaged crop.

Applications are being accepted now and must be filed not later than March 12, 1975 at the Farmers Home Administration Office in Oregon. The address is: Box 336, Oregon, Illinois 61061.

50% MORE SPACE, 50% LESS COST

The Wickes OFF-PEAK Wide Span!

Off-peak side bay provides up to 50% more storage space, accommodates largest equipment. High, wide doors can be placed anywhere you want them for easy in/out access without 'jockeying' equipment around.

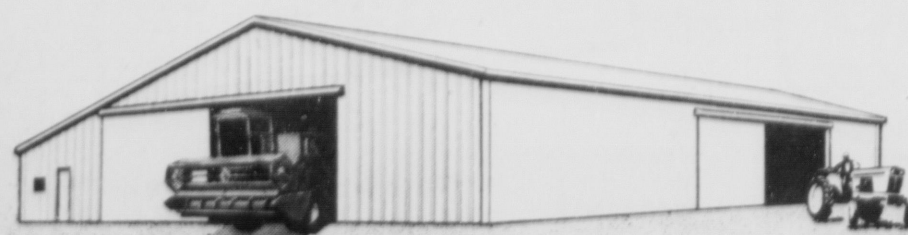

With inflation seemingly a way of life in this country, it's hard to believe there are still a few good bargains around. We know of one for sure, and you should know about it, too.

It's the Wickes OFF-PEAK wide span—today's biggest bargain in a machinery storage building. A full-size, full-height, clear span building (up to 61'6" wide x any length), plus a full-length, off-peak side bay that increases storage area up to 50%—yet costs only half as much per square foot.

There aren't many things you can get at half price anymore. Certainly not farm machinery and equipment. But it may help to know you can still buy an attractive, weathertight building to keep those investments well protected. For about 50% less.

And that's a real bargain.

Plans for gardens should begin now

By M. T. BARLASS
Lee Co. Extension Advisor
The best time to evaluate this year's garden is now — when your crop successes or failures are fresh in your mind. And now's the time to plan for next season, says M. T. Barlass, Lee County Extension advisor.

Ask yourself: Did I have a bountiful harvest of fruits and vegetables? Were the vegetable varieties I used the best I could obtain? Or, can I do better?

Start your evaluation with careful notes. List varieties you grew and not their performance.

Grain producers to attend conference

Grain producers in Lee County can ultimately expect to benefit from a two-day conference for grain handlers to be held January 15 and 16 at the University of Illinois.

During the Grain Conditioning Conference, Midwest grain handlers and dealers will discuss the latest grain conditioning practices and review new techniques that may improve farm grain conditioning systems, says M. T. Barlass, Lee County Extension Advisor.

The conference will be held at the Ramada Inn Convention Center in Champaign. The program begins at 9:30 a.m., January 15, with a welcome by Frank Lanham, head of the University of Illinois Department of Agricultural Engineering.

Included on the program are agricultural engineers from the University of Illinois, Purdue University, South Dakota State University, University of Kentucky, and Ohio State University.

mances. Were your favorites as good or better than some of the newer ones? Did disease cause any losses?

Then, check the Illinois Vegetable Garden Guide, says Barlass. Varieties listed in it are disease resistant. Choices of resistant varieties can reduce common problems like yellows of cabbage, mosaic of cucumbers, and wilt of muskmelons, peas, sweet corn, and tomatoes.

"What about harvest? Do you want to begin earlier or later next year? And what about quality? Would a change to a different variety be an improvement?" Barlass asks.

People can obtain a copy of the Illinois Vegetable Garden Guide from your County Extension office, adds Barlass. Use it to select varieties you want to order for next year. Try one or two new varieties and compare them with your current favorite.

And order your seed catalogs early. Get catalogs from several companies so you will have a wide selection of varieties. A list of vegetable seed companies is available from the Department of Horticulture, 124 Mumford Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill. 61801.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE C-650: Clifton Hirschman and I were dining together recently, along with some of his other friends.
He is the business executive whom I quoted some months ago.
At that time, we were at a table for two when a poker faced waitress approached and asked what we'd have.
"A cup of coffee," Mr. Hirschman replied, "and a SMILE!"
Well, I mentioned this previous retort at our present luncheon with half a dozen other friends.
"Dr. Crane," one of the latter began, "I also have some gripes about restaurants."
"For example, if I take my wife out for dinner and we order steak, the waitress may bring one plate holding a smaller piece and another, a larger helping."
"But the waitress routinely gives the big piece to my wife!"
"Yet the waitress should realize that men have a much greater hunger for food, so if there is a variation in portions, the man should automatically get the larger serving."
Two other men at our table gave a vigorous "Amen" to that complaint.

"What irritates me," a third one of our group grumbled, "is the request as to what dessert I want, even when I have just decided on the main course."
"So I tell the girl to come back when I am through with my meat and potatoes, and I'll then be able to decide on the dessert."
"But the waitress may then dilly dally about returning to my table till I haven't time for dessert, anyway."
Another member of our table group added his similar criticism.
"Before you've eaten the main entree," he argued, "how can you be sure just what your stomach craves for dessert?"
One of our group was a lawyer from a small town.
"In our village," he grumbled, "high school girls serve as part time waitresses, which is fine."
"Except the owner apparently fails to train them in a few of the basic fundamentals."
"Maybe he is too busy looking after the cooking, buying or other chores involved in running a small business nowadays."

"But these girls could learn the fundamentals in 30 minutes if they were briefed expertly."
"They should be drilled in placing water, silverware and a napkin before every new patron on their first visit to his table."
"And they shouldn't hold the spoons or forks by the ends that go into a diner's mouth, for this contaminates those eating utensils with millions of germs."
"That's especially true if the girls also act as cashiers and thus handle the soiled, rumpled paper money or even make change!"
"Why, I've seen girls turn away from the cash register in our village and use their bare hands to lift the chopped raw vegetables into the salad bowl!"
Another common complaint of busy executives at noon was failure of the girl to place the tab beside the diner's plate as she served dessert.
And nowadays it is irritating to find so many high schoolers who can't even add correctly the price of a cheeseburger, pie and coffee!
A good waitress can serve as a helpful Applied Psychologist if she will smile at lonely diners, especially of the Senior Citizen group, but she should also be deft with the above fundamentals!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Miss Richards, James Yeater are wed in Dixon church

Miss Kathryn Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Richards, Dixon, and Lance Corporal James F. Yeater, son of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Yeater, Dixon, exchanged vows at 10:30 a.m. Dec. 23 in the First Church of the Nazarene.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. Robert W. Hale, pastor of the church, and nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Elden Stich.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white silk jersey trimmed with Alencon lace. The gown's A-line skirt was topped by an empire bodice featuring a high lace neckline and tapered sleeves ending in lace cuffs, and lace bordered her cathedral-length illusion mantilla. The bouquet she carried combined miniature red roses, carnations and baby's breath.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES F. YEATER

Miss Judy Yeater, the bride's maid of honor, wore a gown fashioned with a full-length skirt of scarlet velvet and a lace bodice accented by full chiffon sleeves, and identical floor-length gowns of jade-green jersey featuring scooped necklines were worn by the bridal attendants, Mrs. Terry R. Huggins and Miss Debra Richards. Each attendant wore a headpiece of white fur and they carried matching fur muffs.

Thomas P. Richards was the bridegroom's best man, and serving as groomsmen were Harry Ringler and Thomas Meyers.

The VFW Club was the setting for a reception following the ceremony when the tables, covered with white lace cloths, were trimmed with red and green streamers.

A four-tiered wedding cake decorated with red roses and topped by figures of a bride and groom was served by Miss Karen McKamey and Mrs. Thomas Richards as punch and coffee were poured by Miss Richards, and guests were registered by Mrs. Huggins.

Members of the bridal party were also entertained at a rehearsal dinner hosted by the bridegroom's parents in their home.

The bride, a junior at Dixon High School, was an employee of the Lee County Nursing Home prior to her marriage. She plans to complete her education in Grand Prairie, Tex., where they are presently residing. The bridegroom, a graduate of Dixon High School, is stationed with the Marine Corps in Dallas, Tex.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — Could you please tell me how to remove old wallpaper that has been painted over? — MRS. A. W.

DEAR MRS. A. W. — You have a real job ahead of you. Try peeling off any paper that is loose so water can seep behind it. The paint itself is not too amiable to warm water used to remove unpainted paper. I have added vinegar to the warm water (after protecting the floor with newspapers and a plastic drop cloth) and applied this with a sponge paint roller until the paper is saturated. Do one panel at a time. When paper is wet it can be scraped off with a putty knife. Where paint has been applied you will be delighted if it comes off in bits and pieces.

To get a really clean job you probably will have to rent a wallpaper steamer. Wash and rub off any scraps of paper or glue left with steel wool and an all-purpose cleaner, rinse, dry and then apply sizing before applying new paper. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with car manufacturers and mobile home builders who put dark interiors in their creations. These colors absorb an exceptional amount of heat in the sun. Black car interiors tend to make the inside seem smaller as does the dark brown paneling usually used in mobile homes.

Darlyn wanted to remove oily spots and odor from work clothes. I suggest that she treat each spot with a pine oil liquid product and then add a half cup of this product to the wash water to eliminate the odor. A liquid cold water wash product also could be tried on the oily spots as I have had great success with it in pretreating various spots on knits and permanent press items.

Also, I find it most convenient to keep one set of measuring spoons that have been separated by removing the metal ring in a small baby food jar in my cabinet near dry ingredients such as salt, baking powder, etc. — CAROL.

DEAR POLLY — My recycling Pointer is to use the red mesh plastic wrapper that comes around turkeys, fruit, hams, etc., as pot scrubbers after removing any metal clips. I am a senior citizen and have been saving and recycling things for years. I save all rubber bands, gift wrapping, bags and so on. Also I welcome "junk" mail since I use any blank pages and envelopes stapled together as scratch pads. Enclosed envelopes are used to store seeds, coupons, etc. — MRS. E. K. M.

Use fruits in all forms—baked, stewed, scalloped, in whips, in fritters, and on short-cakes.

Dried fruits may replace candy or part of the sweetening in puddings or other desserts.

Serve more foods prepared with molasses, sorghum and honey.

Season foods with plenty of salt. This will bring out the sweetness.

A change to a less sweet diet could be a bonus for your body's nutritional status as well as for your pocketbook.

KSB Auxiliary board meeting

The KSB Hospital Auxiliary board of directors will meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in the hospital dining room.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Mothers are often cautioned to keep their prescription pills out of the reach of children. I wonder how many mothers give a second thought to the babysitter?

A friend of mine had a very unfortunate experience recently which I would like to pass along for whatever it's worth, and it might be worth plenty — like a life.

This 15-year-old girl who used to babysit for my friend was rather quiet, extremely well-behaved and considered thoroughly responsible. She sat for my friend almost every Friday or Saturday night for over 18 months.

One morning, very early, the sitter's mother phoned my friend, frantic. It seems the girl had been rushed to the hospital and very nearly died of an overdose. Her mother discovered a large supply of assorted pills in her daughter's bureau drawer.

After describing the pills, the mystery was solved. The girl had accumulated them over a period of time while babysitting.

So please, Ann — tell your readers to keep their pills locked up and out of the reach not only of their babies but their sitters. — A Messenger

Dear Messenger: Thank you for this vital information. I hope all who read it will check their medicine cabinets and remove any medication which could be dangerous if taken in large amounts — and this includes aspirin.

Dear Ann Landers: This might seem like petty stuff to you but it bothered me so much that I couldn't sleep last night.

A woman I've known for several years (but not well) is the person I am writing about. She is socially prominent and well-off financially. We have served on several committees together, through the years, but we were never what you might call close friends.

Yesterday I was shopping with my sister-in-law and I saw this woman coming toward me. As we passed I smiled at her and said hello. She walked right by as if I didn't exist. I felt like crawling in a hole.

My sister-in-law said nothing but I know she was aware that I had been roundly snubbed.

Why would a person do such a thing? It seems so cruel I can't understand it. Please explain. — Mrs. Nobody

Dear Mrs.: You don't mention the woman's age but I'm willing to bet she's over 50. Having passed that mark myself, I can tell you that the eyes aren't what they used to be. Many people who think they've been "roundly snubbed" were not seen. So please reserve judgment, Lady. You've probably done the same to others.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teen-ager who cured myself of shoplifting and I'd like to pass the secret on to other kids who want to quit.

For two years I lifted everything from lipsticks to transistor radios. I'd see something I wanted and I'd help myself. It was sort of fun — like playing a dangerous game, and winning.

Then one day a good friend of mine got caught. I'll never forget the gossip at school, the shame and disgrace, and what it did to her parents. I put myself in that girl's place because I realized it might have been me.

From then on, whenever I got the urge to lift something I imagined that I was the one who got caught. It cured me. I'll never steal again. Sign My Letter — Lucky M.

Dear Lucky: No comment. You said it all.

Watch South at work

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Four spades by North would be an ironclad contract, but North and South were not using transfer bids and South wound up as the spade declarer.

West opened the 10 of hearts. South could have insured his contract by playing dummy's king but instead played small. East played the deuce of hearts, whereupon West shifted to the 10 of clubs. Dummy's jack lost to East's king. East cashed the ace of hearts and then made the mistake of leading a trump.

"Chucked and possibly re-chucked," murmured South. "I should have put up the king of hearts at trick one."

Then South won the spade; ruffed his last heart and ran off all his trumps.

The last trump lead squeezed West. He had to discard a club in order to retain his ace of diamonds. Now South discarded the last diamond from dummy

Ideal for couples in a hurry

By AILEEN CLAIRE

Many couples who wrestle with the problem of cooking for two solve the dilemma by preparing recipes for four or six and freezing the leftovers in individual portions. When both work, it is always fun to sit down to a quick, hot meal together—one that doesn't take hours of preparation or clean-up time. A one-skillet Spanish Swiss Steak uses an economical cut of meat that tenderizes in a pleasing sauce. Add frozen corn-on-the-cob and canned sliced tomatoes to the skillet in the last 15 minutes to complete the meal. Takes about half an hour of preparation and cooking time.

SPANISH SWISS STEAK SUPPER

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 medium onions, sliced
1 garlic clove, minced
Flour
1/2 pound cubed steak
1 can (14 1/2 ounces) baby sliced tomatoes
1/2 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
2 ears frozen corn-on-the-cob
1 teaspoon chili powder
3 tablespoons water

Melt butter in 10-inch skillet. Sauté onions and garlic until tender, about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, rub 2 tablespoons flour into both sides of meat and cut meat in half. Push onions and garlic to one side of skillet. Add meat and brown well on both sides. Add tomatoes and their liquid, olives, corn and chili powder. Cover and cook 10 to 15 minutes or until corn is fork tender. Remove meat, olives and vegetables to warm plate. Combine 1 tablespoon flour and 3 tablespoons water until smooth. Gradually add to drippings in skillet. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils 1 minute. Serve gravy with meat and vegetables. Makes 2 servings.

Let's Talk About Decorating

More About Those Versatile Area Rugs

By KARLEEN BENSINGER

Area rugs are so versatile they can be picked up and moved from room to room. Yet, they are so important that they can be the focal point of a room's entire decorating scheme. Today, I'd like to give you a few tips on how to choose area rugs for your home.

First, measure the area you want covered. The, when selecting your rug, choose one a bit larger than the area you've measured. It's always better to have a rug that's a bit large than one that's too small. Don't choose a rug which brings in colors that are completely unrelated to the other colors in the room. Choose a color that will enhance and corollate your overall color scheme. Remember texture select a dense pile rug if it will be placed in a well-traveled area of your home. Try to select from brands that are well-known and have a reputation for quality and reliability. Check the label for fiber content and for washing or cleaning instructions.

Suggestions and ideas for area rug use are always available at Dunbar's. Visit with one of our professional design counselors for personalized suggestions and ideas — Today.

Colonial militia at Williamsburg, Va., stages a demonstration of firepower for visitors. More than 200 Bicentennial events are planned in the state.

Virginia Bicentennial plans well underway

RICHMOND, Va.— While much of the nation still flounders in the face of America's Bicentennial celebration, the state of Virginia claims to have its battery of plans for the nation's 200th birthday well under control. Initial preparations for the unique celebration were begun in Virginia nearly eight years ago, according to the state's Bicentennial commission.

Extensive preparations include the restoration of major historic sites, construction of three state Bicentennial centers and the spending of an estimated $300 million in new visitor facilities including the building of more than 15,000 hotel and motel rooms and of two multi-million-dollar family entertainment theme parks.

Restoration projects are nearing completion at major historic attractions such as Charlottesville where Thomas Jefferson lived, Alexandria near George Washington's home Mount Vernon, Yorktown where the Revolutionary War ended, and the colonial capital Williamsburg.

As a convenience to the millions of visitors expected in Virginia during the celebration, a Bicentennial Center in northern Virginia has opened and two more are scheduled for completion in Yorktown and Charlottesville by 1976. The three centers are designed to portray the life and times of early Virginia during the nation's development and to introduce visitors to the state's nearby attractions and events.

In addition, two new highway welcome stations are planned, increasing the number of stations at points of entry to 10. The stations supply visitors with travel information and have the capacity to make on-the-spot reservations at motels and hotels anywhere in Virginia.

Kings Dominion and Busch Gardens will open this spring, spotlighting Virginia as the home of two of the largest, most expensive family entertainment-theme park centers in the nation. Both parks, totaling $85 million, will include historical theme areas.

In addition, more than 80 cities and towns in Virginia are now revising tours for visitors. Most of these tours have relevance to the Bicentennial spirit and theme. Furthermore, approximately 200 events are being planned for the festival year.

One result of this rise in activity and planning is that tour operators such as airline, rail and bus companies now offer 120 package tours to the Old Dominion, an increase of 23 per cent over last year.

A primary reason for Virginia's extensive plan-and-development programs prior to the Bicentennial is that the state bulges with more than 350 years of basic American history. Virginia seems to have nurtured more than its share of historic places such as Jamestown, Williamsburg and Yorktown and of famous Americans including George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry and John Marshall.

EPA guilty in ozone watch alert

CHICAGO (AP) — Acting on a citizens' complaint, the Illinois Pollution Control Board has found the Environmental Protection Agency guilty of failing to issue an ozone watch. The board ruled 5-0 at its meeting last week that the EPA should have declared an ozone watch at noon Aug. 9. In a strongly worded statement, it told the board that, "It is a public disservice to ignore public health regulations."

Jacob Dumelle, board chairman, said, "It gets a little sticky when you have to rap your sister agency on the knuckles, but people with respiratory problems ought to know when ozone levels are going to be high."

Ozone, a gas formed by chemical reactions between oxygen and auto emissions on sunny days, causes nose, throat and eye irritations even at low levels.

The board emphasized that declaring a watch for the entire six-county metropolitan area around Chicago does not force any industries to curtail operations and does not cause any economic dislocation.

Chrysler discount off to good start

By The Associated Press
Chrysler dealers throughout the nation report some new car sales and increasing showroom traffic on the first day of Chrysler's price discount promotion.

"Somebody had to get the ball rolling and finally they realized it all starts in the showroom," Lewis Palombi, sales manager at Fiermont Chrysler-Plymouth in Lemoyne, Pa., said Monday.

Not all the customers were after the cars eligible for a discount under the Chrysler "Car Clearance Carnival."

"I was a little dubious until we got into it, but it looks good," a St. Louis Chrysler sales manager said Monday after selling three cars before noon.

"Our inventory is so high, we need the sales," he added.

The five-week Chrysler plan offers a rebate to customers buying selected models. This week the automaker also is offering an additional $100 to buyers who trade in a subcompact Ford Pinto or Chevrolet Vega.

The current $200 rebate is good for the purchase of a Dodge Dart Swinger or Plymouth Duster. The Duster carries a sticker price ranging from $3,243 to $3,979. Swingers list between $3,341 and $3,640.

Non-Chrysler dealers generally are watching the promotion closely.

"We haven't had any great reaction to it yet," said Bob Production up, but . . .

Milk output decreased during 1974

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary figures by the Agriculture Department show that milk production per cow increased last year after slumping in 1973 for the first time since World War II. But the slight gain in average production per cow did not prevent another decline in total U.S. milk output, estimated at less than 114.86 billion pounds.

Dairy experts in the department think 1975 production will decline again, although there could be some recovery late in the year if big corn and other crops materialize and feed costs go down from current high levels.

The 1974 crop in total milk production was far less than a 3.5 per cent decline in 1973. Average milk output per cow in 1973 declined to 10,125 pounds per animal from 10,250 the previous year. The 1974 average was 10,291 pounds, a record high.

Also, the figures showed, the U.S. dairy cow inventory — which has been declining for many years — dropped again in 1974 to 11,161,000 head, a decline of 258,000 from 1973. That put the average number of cows on farms last year to its smallest total in nearly a century of USDA records.

A review of those records Monday showed that average milk production per cow had increased annually since World War II until the 1973 slump. But during the war there was a rapid buildup of dairy cow herds, reaching a peak of nearly 28 million head. Those new cows, many of them poor quality by today's standards, meant a statistical drop in average production. A World War II cow, for example, averaged only about 4,600 pounds of milk a year, less than one-half today's output.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Farmers Union says "the door is wide open" for new farm legislation as the new 94th Congress begins work today.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., has indicated his first priority is to hold hearings on new farm legislation. He is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. The NFU said Monday in its weekly newsletter that Talmadge's committee plans a full-scale review of programs affecting farmers.

"The major thrust of the new legislation will be to increase the current target price levels for wheat, feed grains and cotton," the farm organization said. "But the committee makes it clear that all agricultural programs will be open to review."

Under 1973 legislation which went into effect with last year's crops, farmers are guaranteed target prices for their share of commodities needed for domestic and export requirements. But farm costs have gone up sharply the past year and those target prices should be increased, many spokesmen say.

The target price of wheat, for example, is $2.05 per bushel. Although the cash market price currently is much higher than that, there is concern that a huge 1975 crop might cause a precipitous decline and severe losses to producers.

Under the target price concept, if market prices for a commodity are higher than the target no government payments are made to farmers. But if market prices drop below target levels then farmers can collect federal payments to make up the difference.

Cole optimistic on enrollments

Dr. George Cole, president of Sauk Valley College, expressed his optimism at a higher Spring semester enrollment rate at the meeting of the Sauk Valley College Board of Trustees Monday night.

Cole said enrollment figures from Friday, the opening day for registration, were higher than previous years and the 10-day report on enrollment was expected to reach a new high.

Cole also noted more persons were enrolling in college courses to upgrade their education.

He added approximately 30 students were being enrolled in the Comprehensive Employment Training Act with the Illinois Farmers Union.

In another report, Cole said he had received several letters from district residents, including a letter from Lloyd Daub, superintendent of the Milledgeville Schools, supporting the initiation of a football program at SVC.

Daub said in his letter many area boys, including Milledgeville, who are good football players, don't have the chance to play football because they can't afford the costs of larger schools.

A feasibility study on the football program at SVC is being made.

A report was heard on the state board test results for the 1974 practical nurses program at the college.

Results of the rests, coming from the Department of Registration and Education, showed all 39 of the 1974 Practical Nursing graduates had passed their license examinations. The passing score of the state examination was 350, with SVC students averaging a 535 score. Seventy-eight per cent of the graduates scored well over 450, with 28 per cent scoring over 600. The top score for SVC graduates was 723.

In other action, the board approved a leave of absence for Michael Meyer. The three-month leave will allow Meyer to complete his doctoral studies. Part-time help will be hired to replace Meyer during his leave.

The board directed the Executive Committee and Ward to meet with Thornber representative to negotiate a settlement and report back to the board.

The board concurred in the reappointment of Sidney Sinow and George Balser to the Lee County Planning Committee and the appointment of Ernest Radke to replace Rex Bradshaw on the commission.

Ward gave the board an opinion the date of election for county board members could not be reverted to April until 1980.

Ashton board gets library funds

ASHTON — Funds for the Title I program were approved Monday night at the regular meeting of the Ashton School Board of Trustees.

A total of $900 in federal funds will be used for the purchase of library books.

Board members voted to continue support of the Lee County Film Corporation.

Supt. Richard L. McCannon was directed to investigate costs of repairs on the Ashton Grade School windows and the roof and gym floor of the Ashton High School.

The administration was also directed to develop plans to eliminate cars' speeding through school grounds during school hours and from parking on school grass in front of the high school during athletic contests.

The board approved a request to hold a spring musical at the high school and to allow students to charge admissions to the function. The date of the musical will be set later.

Coleman tied to Pan Am board

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's planned nomination of William T. Coleman Jr. to be secretary of transportation is expected to raise questions about Coleman's ties to Pan American World Airways. The Transportation Department has been working with the financially ailing airline in an effort to keep it solvent. Coleman is a member of the airline's board.

Congress, Ford divided on tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Early enactment of an anti-recession tax cut appears certain but President Ford and the heavily Democratic 94th Congress appear divided over how much of the reduction should go to lower and middle-income taxpayers. Most key Democrats reacted to Ford's tax proposals by saying they favor a tax cut about equal to the $16-billion reduction in personal and corporate income taxes that the President proposed Monday night.

26 killed as convoy is shelled

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Khmer Rouge gunners shelled a Mekong River convoy loaded with refugees from besieged Neak Luong, killing 26 persons and wounding 42, Cambodian navy sources reported today. The convoy was carrying more than 250 civilians, most of them women and children, from the naval base and ferry crossing 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh which has been under siege for two weeks.

Heavy fighting along border

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Heavy fighting continued along the Cambodian border west of Saigon and on South Vietnam's central coastal plain near Bong Son, the South Vietnamese command reported today. The command said 151 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have been killed and three armored personnel carriers destroyed by South Vietnamese infantry, air strikes and artillery since an attack before dawn Monday on a government border post 55 miles west of Saigon. Six government troops have been killed and 35 wounded, the command said.

Armed men sought by Paris police

PARIS (AP) — Police armed with submachine guns combed Paris today for two men who fired bazooka rockets that narrowly missed an Israeli jetliner about to take off for New York and hit a parked Yugoslav plane and a building at Orly Airport. Three persons — a Yugoslav steward, a policeman and a baggage handler — were injured, none of them seriously. Witnesses said the two terrorists were tall and appeared to be in their 30s. But the police said they had no clue to their identities or their nationalities.

Gulf Oil under fire after spill

BANTRY, Ireland (AP) — The Gulf Oil Co. is under attack again by fishermen and nature lovers because of another oil spill in Bantry Bay, one of Ireland's most noted beauty spots. A tug punched a hole last Friday night in the Liberian supertanker Afran Zodiac, and about 115,000 gallons of crude oil leaked into the 25-mile inlet on the southwest coast. The fishermen of Bantry Bay are still waiting for Gulf to compensate them for a 625,000-gallon oil spill last October that spoiled some of their fishing grounds for at least a year.

Tax increase would follow refund

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Any tax refund as proposed by President Ford will have to be paid for with a future tax increase, but Americans should still spend the money rather than save it, says the Bank of America's top economist. "There are no free rides," Walter E. Hoadley, executive vice president of the world's largest commercial bank, said in a speech before a civic group Monday. "When we turn the corner, let's be prepared to pay for it with higher taxes," Hoadley told the Comstock Club.

Reagan now doing his own thing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan drives himself around town these days. He does repair work on his old ranch home. But he doesn't intend to leave public life entirely. His chores, such as building a fence at his Santa Barbara ranch and roofing his home there, will be sandwiched between nationwide speaking tours, radio commentary shows and a newspaper column. Just a week out of office, the former Republican governor of California said in an interview Monday that, while it is a relief not to have the governor's responsibilities any more, he misses the authority to take action when he sees a problem.

The annual March of Dimes campaign got under way in Amboy this week and Mrs. Gene J. Lauts, above, accepts a contribution from Mayor Kenneth McCracken. The drive for funds will continue through the month with Mrs. Floyd Noble Jr., chairman, being assisted by more than 50 workers in canvassing the community. The money raised will be used for research, genetic counselling, prenatal tests and treatment and to assist children born with birth defects. (Telegraph Photo)

U.S. mint turning out Bicentennial silver coin sets

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — To commemorate the nation's bicentennial the United States Mint is changing your change.

And, with hopes of turning a buck, it's selling 40 million sets of 40 per cent silver coins — each set face valued at $1.75 — for $9. Five million better silver sets are offered at $15.

Mary Brooks, mint director, said in a telephone interview the silver sets will please coin collectors because they "are going to be very unique, and in the future, probably very valuable."

Not that she's encouraging speculation in the commemorative.

"I don't like the idea that people collect coins just for the prospect of making money," she said. "I like the idea of their collecting them because of the history that it teaches people, the history of the whole civilization of the world...and these coins will last a thousand, two thousand years. They'll be found in whatever rubble we leave behind us."

Browsers in the rubble will probably not know that the Queen of England and Director Brooks' eye doctor are behind the decision to revise just a side of each bicentennial coin. Nor will they know that George Washington made the field in a horse trade.

Mrs. Brooks said she based bicentennial coins on the silver dollar and the half dollar. She said, though, she was reluctant to take it up with Congress because of the tussle with the lawmakers over the reissuing of silver dollars.

With all the wrangling he last time over whose face to stamp on the silver dollars, she said, she feared that this time the House and Senate might insist on Sam Rayburn.

One day her eye doctor noted England revises only the tails side of its commemorative coins, leaving the Queen untouched on the heads side. She decided to suggest that to Congress.

But Congress wanted the George Washington quarter as part of the commemorative set, and a bargain was made. She would go along with the lawmakers and they would allow her to retain some aging coin presses.

Under the agreement, the set will consist of an Eisenhower dollar with a likeness of the Liberty Bell superimposed on the moon, a Kennedy half with Independence Hall in relief and a Washington quarter adorned with that venerable pedestrian, the colonial militia drummer. Each is dated 1776-1976.

Some purists object to the designs, which were selected from 5,000 entries in a nationwide contest. There might have been more entries to choose from, she said, except that the day she announced the competition, Elliot Richardson dominated the news by resigning as Attorney General in the Watergate case.

Mrs. Brooks said she has some misgivings about the high prices for the commemorative sets but blames the Arab oil embargo and what she called congressional "hanky-panky."

Congress stunned her, she said, by ordering 45 million sets. She would prefer to make only as many as she thinks will sell.

For planning purposes the prices had to be decided in advance — about the time the embargo was imposed, threatening higher production, packaging and advertising costs.

As it is, the Mint hopes for a large sale and to break even or make a small profit. Orders for the first batch must be submitted by Jan. 31. Delivery is set for after July 4.

The following is a timetable and schedule of events: 12:30 p.m., wrestling (gym), optional; 2:30-3:30 p.m., registration, front hall; 3:30-4:45, welcome (cafeteria); 4:45-5:30, tours (student Council); 4:30-4:45, Varsity Voices (gym); 4:45-5:30, mass; 5:30-6:30, dinner (cafeteria) and drama presentation in Little Theatre; 6:30-7 p.m., dance and gymnastics demonstration in gym; 7-7:15 p.m., question and answer period in gym; 7:15-8:30, freshman-eighth grade mixer in cafeteria; 8:30, dismissal. Parents may pick up their youngsters at the main entrance of the gym on St. Mary's Road.

All eighth grade students in the Lee and Whiteside County area, from both private and public school—Catholic and non-Catholic alike—are invited to attend this special day. Parents of the students are also welcome to attend any or all of the events.

Bus transportation will be furnished for Dixon students according to the following schedule:

Bus will leave St. Patrick's Church at 2 p.m., St. Anne's Church at 2:10 p.m. Return—will leave Newman at 8:30 p.m., arriving at St. Anne's at 8:50, and St. Patrick's at 9 p.m.

Rochelle council adopts bond act

ROCHELLE — A resolution was introduced to accept the Illinois Industrial Bond Act of 1971, at the Rochelle City Council meeting Monday. This act allows industries to borrow money at a more advantageous interest rate.

The Zoning Board of Appeals agreed to a variance for Harold Wetzel so he could build a garage addition at 500 N. Seventh St.

Street improvements were accepted in North Gate No. 2 and No. 3 subdivisions. The board received a check from Don Gillis, of Gillis Insurance Co., which was presented to the city in the amount of $40,955.10. This is to be used by the utility department for the loss of a transformer that had been struck by lightning.

A check was received from State Bank in the amount of $2,408. This is half the amount needed for the cost of constructing a new floor in the mausoleum.

Rochelle's portion of the revenue sharing money from last quarter was received. The check was in the amount of $33,392.

Fire Chief Bill Lower announced that the storm alert systems are ready to be erected on poles. These will be erected by the Utility Department workers.

The mayor and his council, Police Chief Winston Brass, City Engineer Ken Kedare and Fire Chief Bill Lower, are going to the ICC Building in Chicago to discuss an overpass over railroads and a grade crossing at Caron Road, in Rochelle.

Two arrested after chase in Sublette

A Mendota man and woman were arrested Monday night in various charges stemming from an incident at the Vernon Becker home, rural Sublette.

Dennis H. Hageman, 35 and Colleen Purvis, 22, both of Mendota were taken into custody by Lee County Sheriff's Deputies. Hageman was charged with criminal trespass to a vehicle, criminal trespass to land and criminal damage to property. The Purvis woman was arrested for criminal trespass to land.

Hits traffic signal post

Mary E. Fagan, 73, 824 N. Dement, was cited for improper lane usage following an accident at N. Galena Ave. and Everett St.

The Fagan woman was charged after she attempted to make a left turn onto Galena Avenue, went up over the curb and struck a traffic control signal box. The signal box was located on the northeast corner of the intersection.

rested for criminal trespass to land.

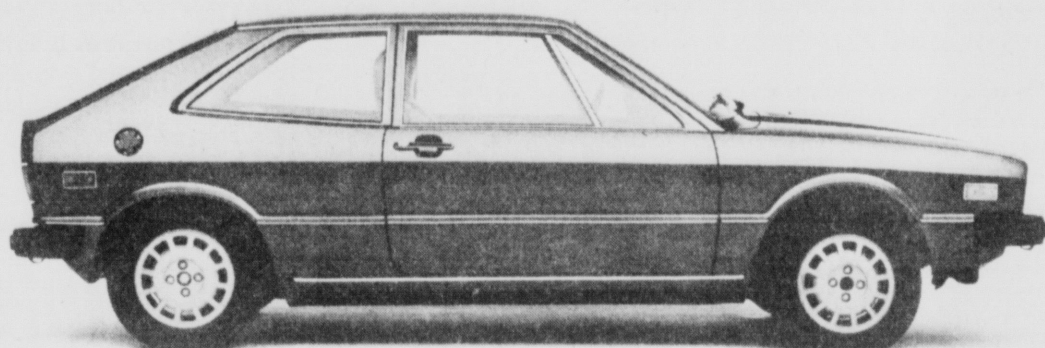

The pair was arrested after they were accused of chasing Randolph Becker to his home after Becker offered to help the two with their car. Becker told deputies he had seen Hageman's car off the road and after offering them help, the pair chased Becker to his home and began to bang on the door. When Becker's father called authorities, Hageman left and stole Randolph Becker's car.

Hageman and Purvis were later apprehended in Mendota and the stole car was recovered several miles from the Becker home. Both have posted bond.

Food shortages top World Affairs meet

URBANA, Ill. — Global food shortages are the top international concern for Illinois leaders planning four public 1975 World Affairs Conferences to be conducted during the coming months by the University of Illinois, in Dixon-Sterling-Rock Falls. Food will be a focus, according to J. Terry Iversen, U. of I. Continuing Education in International Affairs, and director of the conference.

Major national speakers, foreign diplomats, and other experts will be keynoteers, debaters, discussants, or panelists at the four conferences, Iversen explained. Audience questions and discussions also are built into the programs. The general public is invited to all conferences, and special registration rates are provided for full- and part-time students and senior citizens.

Menard guards' strike unlikely

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — It appears unlikely Menard prison guards will strike over the dismissals of two officers accused of racist activities, a spokesman for the guards' union said Monday.

Allyn Sielaff, Corrections Department director, the two fired guards and officials of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees met in Sielaff's office for more than an hour Monday to discuss the firings amidst strike threats.

William G. Hargett and Roy R. Res were suspended Thursday after an investigation of Ku Klux Klan, neo-Nazi and black power activities among guards and inmates at the Southern Illinois prison. Effective Jan. 24, Sielaff said, the suspensions become dismissals.

William Phillips, president of AFSCME Local 1175 at Menard, said before the meeting that the charges made no sense. His local represents 130 of the prison's 273 guards and some of them said they would strike unless the department made some move to satisfy them by 11 p.m. Tuesday. Sielaff said in a telephone interview that during the meeting the two guards and the union officials "asked that I do one of two things: either re-instate the officers, which I said I could not do, or try to insure that there would be a speedy hearing before the civil service commission." Strike threats were not discussed, Sielaff and the union spokesman said.

At the meeting Sielaff called the commission director and was assured that the guards would have a hearing by Feb. 7.

Steve Cullen, an AFSCME staff representative who participated in the meeting, said he thought that would satisfy the local.

Phillips, en route to Menard, could not be reached for comment.

Menard is just south of Chester in Randolph County.

Strike vote taken for United pilots

CHICAGO (AP) — Strike ballots have been mailed to United Air Lines' 5,400 pilots after their negotiators reportedly rejected a tentative agreement which would cut out 100 jobs for pilots.

Fred Dubinski, a spokesman for the United Air Lines Pilots Association, said Monday ballots will be tabulated in Washington and results will be available after Feb. 2.

A mandatory 30-day cooling off period expires Feb. 4, after which the pilots are free to strike, said Dubinski, United ALPA secretary-treasurer.

Dubinski declined comment on the likelihood of a strike or specifics of the tentative agreement.

But William Arsenault, chairman of the United Master Executive Council of ALPA, which turned down the tentative agreement Dec. 23, at that time blamed the rejection on a clause that provided increased pilot productivity that would eliminate 100 jobs for pilots.

When bargaining broke off last week, Mike Williams, another pilot spokesman, said, "The problem is that the proposed contract would weaken working conditions. We would be asked to fly longer hours and that would result in the furloughing of many pilots."

Salaries reportedly would be boosted 22 per cent over three years under the tentative agreement, making top pay for pilots $80,616 in 1976. But both UAL and ALPA spokesmen have said salary was not an issue in the dispute.

No further contract negotiations have been scheduled, Dubinski said.

In response, Miss Scott told the group she believed that state and federal governments have done a poor job of enforcing and establishing industrial safety standards.

"No one type of expert is sufficient to solve the problems," she said. "I can offer an overview on the subject."

She said she felt like "Alice in Wonderland" because she was not given a chance to show her abilities before the society opposed her appointment.

Compromise needed in House leadership post

Redmond of Bensenville. A record 77th vote was scheduled for today.

The longest speaker's race in state history took place in 1913, when 76 ballots were needed, according to the Legislative Council, the research arm of the General Assembly.

When the results of the final ballot were read Monday night, Redmond, a quiet member of the rank and file, had 79 votes, and Choate, the colorful Democratic leader, held on to 17.

House rules require that one candidate receive 89 votes to be elected speaker. Republicans, outnumbered 101 to 76, have steadfastly stayed out of the fight, casting their votes for their leader, Rep. James Washburn of Morris.

Choate, who received a majority of Democratic votes in a party caucus a week ago, was the frontrunner in the first 38 ballots. Redmond, a 16-year House veteran, held the lead for the next 38 ballots.

The shift came abruptly when Rep. Gerald Shea, D-Riverside, the floor spokesman for Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, announced that he was shifting his vote from Choate to Redmond.

About 40 Daley loyalists, who have provided the bulk of Choate's 60-odd votes in early balloting, quickly followed suit.

Choate, facing the toughest political battle in his 28-year career, has been opposed from the outset by Gov. Daniel Walker, who has said any of several other candidates, including Redmond, would be acceptable. But Choate remained undaunted.

"I'll stay in the race as long as 15, 17 or 20 or whatever it is persons want me to," he said. "Redmond has the support of both titular leaders (Walker and Daley) and still can't put it together." Choate said.

"There's absolutely no reason to stand around spinning our wheels simply to satisfy the egos of two so-called Democratic leaders of this state."

Redmond was equally determined.

"I will stay in the race until I am cast aside by my party," Redmond told reporters.

He did not elaborate, but said he intended to put together 89 Democratic votes by adding votes scattered among three other candidates as well as some from the Choate wing.

Voting resumed Monday following a weekend recess called in the early hours Saturday morning when the deadlock remained firm after 64 ballots.

A brief, futile Democratic caucus was held after 10 ballots were taken Monday without significant change in alignment. The House reconvened after dinner, took two more ballots and recessed.

Chicago Christian strengthened its hold on the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press weekly Class A Illinois High School basketball poll.

Christian commanded 18 of 20 first-place votes cast by a board of sportswriters and sportscasters throughout the state. The Knights, swelling their record to 14-0 following one-sided victories over Luther South and Providence, collected 317 out of a possible 320 points.

Metropolis retained the No. 2 position as the Trojans swept through the Anna Tournament with three victories to boost their record to 14-0.

Metropolis, picking up one of the other two first-place votes, edged Joppa 59-58, and then pounded Cairo 83-67 and Meridian 60-48.

Teutopolis held third place by whipping Windsor 72-49 but after that the standings became jumbled.

Venice and Sparta, both with 10-1 records, climbed to fourth and fifth, respectively, while St. Jacob Triad fell from fourth to seventh. Triad defeated Highland 84-70 after a 62-60 loss to Mascoutah.

Johnston City, 11-2, climbed a notch to sixth place and Madison moved from No. 11 to No. 8 while Quincy Catholic held ninth place.

Headed by top-ranked East Leyden, Chicago-area teams are dominating the Associated Press Class AA High School basketball ratings.

In the AP's second weekly poll, no fewer than six Chicago-area schools are notched among the top nine selected Tuesday by statewide panel of 20 sportswriters and sportscasters.

East Leyden's Eagles, swooping for a pair of victories last week to extend their perfect record to 15-0, missed only one first-place vote in tightening their one-week-old hold on the No. 1 spot.

The Eagles, after trouncing West Leyden 82-46 and outlasting Willowbrook 80-71 in overtime, collected 319 of a possible 320 points in this week's balloting.

Another Chicago-area powerhouse, Maine South, 11-1 after defeating Niles West 74-70 and New Trier West 83-53, maintained the runnerup spot with 274 points.

Also running high in the poll from Chicago are No. 4 Thornton; No. 5 Chicago Phillips; No. 8 Proviso East, the defending Class AA champion, and No. 9 Thornridge which may be back on the glory road blazed by Quinn Buckner a few years ago.

However, still in strong poll contention is Peoria Richwoods, 13-1, which this week climbed from fifth to third as the Knights were awarded 240 points after belting Peoria Spalding 108-76 and nipping Decatur Eisenhower 84-83.

Another prime downstate contender, Lawrenceville, slipped from fourth to sixth despite a 76-64 conquest of Flora last week.

The only other undefeated club in the Top 16, Benton, dropped a peg to seventh even though the Rangers came up with a pair of victories, 83-69 over Harrisburg and 77-74 over Centralia.

In other changes Pontiac climbed from 12th to 10th; Peoria Central advanced three spots to 11th; Decatur Eisenhower moved up from 13th to 12th; Bloomington perked from 15th to 13th, and two newcomers crashed the Top 16.

They included Joliet Central, moving into the 15th berth with an 11-1 record and Normal Community latching onto 16th with 12-2.

Tumbling out of the Top 16 were No. 9 Chicago Heights Bloom, trounced by Thornridge 71-47, and No. 16 Springfield Southeast, stung by Normal Community 61-49.

Sectional wrestling at Dixon

BLOOMINGTON—Defending champions Savanna (Class AA) and Olympia Fields (Rich Central (Class AA) begin defense of their first-ever two-class titles when the 38th annual Illinois High School Association Wrestling Tournament series begins at the district level the weekend of Feb. 14-15.

Assignment of schools to Districts and correlated Sectionals was announced today by IHSAA Executive Secretary Harry Fitzhugh. "This year's series will be the biggest ever in terms of participating teams," Fitzhugh observed. "Based upon the reaction to last year's first two-class series, the popularity of the sport in Illinois is mushrooming. This year's tournament series could be the most wide open of any."

District tournament competition in both Class A (for schools with enrollments of 750 or less) and Class AA (for schools with enrollments of 751 or more) will begin Valentine's Day (Friday, Feb. 14) in the evening at 15 of the 16 Class A sites (competition at Eureka will start Feb. 13) and all 28 Class AA sites. A total of 140 downstate and suburban schools entered this year's small school series. (Last year, 131 schools entered.) A total of 241 downstate and suburban schools entered the large school series, an increase of 13 over last year. Total number of schools entered, excluding members of the Chicago Public League, is 381.

First and second place finishers in each of the 12 weight classes at the Districts advance to Sectional warfare the weekend of Feb. 21-22. Class A Sectionals will be held at: Mt. Olive, Normal (Univ.), Port Byron (Riverdale) and Yorkville. Class AA Sectionals will be held at: Dixon, Granite City (South), Naperville (Central), Normal (Comm), Northlake (West Leyden), Riverside (R-Brookfield) and Rockford (Boylan). The top two finishers in each weight, along with the top two in each weight in the Chicago Public League meet, then advance to the State Final Tournament at the Assembly Hall, Champaign, the weekend of Feb. 28-March 1. The State Final Tournament will be conducted concurrently. Last year, more than 33,000 fans attended the finale.

Savanna opens at the Stillman Valley District, while Yorkville, which lost last year's Class A title by 1.5 points, opens at its own district. Rich Central, which won last year's Class AA title by a 10-point margin over Oak Lawn (H.S.), opens at the Richton Park (Rich South) District.

Season tickets for the State Final Tournament will go on sale beginning Feb. 1 at a reduced price, and may be obtained by writing: IHSAA State Wrestling Tournament Tickets, Room 101, Assembly Hall, Champaign, Ill. 61820. Price is $5 for adults and $4 for students. Checks should be made payable to the University of Illinois. Single-session tickets on sale each day of the State Final will be priced at $1.50. A season ticket will admit the bearer to all sessions of the State Final Tournament.

Pride and determination evident at NBA star game

PHOENIX (AP) — All-Star games often are an exercise in exhibitionism and individualism, but the coaches and players participating in tonight's nationally televised National Basketball Association contest are taking the game quite seriously.

"Even though it's basically a fun game, there is a lot of pride and determination involved and we will be out to win," said Washington's K.C. Jones, coach of the underdog East team.

"Even though individual skills and abilities will be greatly in evidence, I think it will be a very competitive game," commented Golden State's Al Attles, whose West team is rated a slight favorite.

The East, leading the series 15-9 going into the 25th All-Star game, will be out to avenge last year's 134-123 beating at Seattle and losses in three of the last four games.

In the East's only victory since 1970, a 104-84 decision at Chicago in 1973, it held the West to the lowest point total since 1953, when the West won 79-75.

Tonight, Attles is not worried about his team's offense, which is powered by Golden State forward Rick Barry, the league's leading scorer, and Milwaukee center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the NBA's all-time scoring av-

Persian arms race poses instability

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

As recession-proof as ever, the arms business is going great guns in the Persian Gulf area, and some competent observers contend that long-range it promises to produce highly dangerous instability.

What is going on there now seems only the beginning and only one aspect of a complex of arms races.

Expert projections indicate that at present rates, members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will have a trillion dollars to invest in 10 years. So why be stingy with arms? The U.S. State Department says American arms "contribute to stability" in the Middle East, but the buildup has an uncomfortable looking momentum.

Even if Israel and her immediate Arab neighbors manage to avoid a fifth war, an explosion eventually appears all too possible elsewhere in an area where superpowers contest.

Statistics on the burgeoning petro-armies for the last few years are mightily sobering.

The world trade in arms is estimated to have hit $18 billion in fiscal 1974, a large share of it in the Middle East.

The United States is the world's biggest arms supplier.

To the sensitive Persian Gulf area alone in the last three years the United States sold $8 billion worth of arms. Apart from Israel, the main American Middle East clients are Iran and Saudi Arabia.

The Soviet Union is the second-ranking supplier of arms to the world. In the Middle East its main clients are Syria, Egypt and Iraq. It evidently has some guerrilla beneficiaries as well.

France has customers all over the Middle East. Others such as West Germany, Britain, Communist Poland and Communist Czechoslovakia clamor for a share in the profits of the trade.

All are able to explain their moves.

The Americans often "maintain the military balance" in the Middle East. French, British and Germans suggest that if they don't supply arms, somebody else will, and anyway they must make up for the painful costs of oil. The Russians and their allies purport to back "oppressed" people against aggression and uphold "fraternal" governments or useful "liberation movements."

Four months ago the Institute of Strategic Services in London noted that since 1970 there had been a jolting upsurge in arms spending by Iran and Saudi Arabia, each eager to amass sophisticated weaponry. The ISS regarded this as promising a "very dangerous" situation of instability.

In the fiscal year that ended July 1, Iran, a nation of 30 million, bought a whopping $3.5 billion worth of American weaponry, a total more than 10 times what the whole world spent on arms in 1952.

The Shah of Iran is often pictured as eager to restore the Persian glory of 25 centuries ago, to build Iran into a ranking world military power in a relatively short time.

The other day Saudi Arabia, a desert nation of 8 million not long ago considered backward and feudal, contracted for an additional $756 million worth of American supersonic jet fighters. In December it contracted with France for $860 million worth of military hardware.

The Doctor Says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— When I was a young girl I lived part of my life on a nice farm where we had a hundred scapes of bees. One summer it was my duty to watch where the bees went when they swarmed. I was stung very often. Older people would often see me when wearing a bee sting and would say it was too bad, but now I would not suffer from rheumatism later in life.

Well, now I am 82, and it seems that the old saying may be true. I am curious to know if it is just a happy accident or if they really knew.

DEAR READER— That is often said, but there is nothing to it. Fortunately not everyone gets arthritis and you are one of the lucky ones. You wouldn't have had it even if you had never seen a bee in your life.

This wives' tale is dangerous since bee stings can be dangerous to some people. They can cause a violent shock-like reaction. These people need to be treated to decrease the danger of a severe reaction to an unexpected sting by a bee or wasp.

DEAR DR. LAMB— I agree thoroughly with keeping one's weight down to normal by watching cholesterol, fats, and sugar, plus proper exercise. Two glasses of fortified skim milk per day is a must.

Some of my friends tell me they use nonfat dry milk. When mixed and placed in the refrigerator overnight it tastes all right. It is much less expensive than fortified skim milk. We all know the prohibitive rise in food costs daily. Is this dried milk just as good and will it do the same for you as the more costly skim milk? I cannot see where the word skim is used on the box.

DEAR READER— The dry nonfat milk powder is an excellent food. I recommend its use in low-fat, low-cholesterol food preparation because it is a good source of high quality protein and calcium.

You can increase the amount you use in recipes for desserts, sauces and even in making homemade bread. That increases the calcium and protein in the diet without increasing the fat intake.

Look on the top and bottom of the box. The Carnation brand, for example, says nonfat dry milk on the top and bottom but not the sides. It is as good in every way as the fortified skim milk you buy and is a lot cheaper.

There is an improvement by letting it stand mixed overnight in the refrigerator. Don't ask me why. Adding a little bit of salt also helps enormously. (I don't recommend this for patients who must watch their salt intake.) I have often wondered if, in the processing, some salt was lost that affected the flavor.

Still another technique is to add a little bit of honey to the milk and let it stand overnight in the refrigerator. You will notice the honey flavor, but it is an agreeable change.

As most cartons of dry milk powder tell you, it can be mixed with regular milk to improve the flavor. Just mix up a quart of milk with the powder and add it to a quart of regular milk. That will cut down on the fat intake and lower the milk bill. Of course, to keep the fat real low you could use fortified skim milk instead of regular milk for the half and half mixture. This boy is learning while earning

An opportunity for your son.

Newspaper route management teaches him to deal with people

A BOY with a newspaper route earns money that can help him get the things he wants. Even a college education.

More than that, he learns life's important lessons.

One of these is on how to deal with people.

Meeting his customers on his route, collecting and servicing, he gains this valuable business competence. It will help him throughout his life. Many former newspaperboys, notable successes among them, have told us as much.

Your newspaperboy also applies the arithmetic he learns in the classroom in a practical way by making change and handling bills. . . . thus he becomes a better student. He learns, too, the value of promptness and of good manners.

In fact, you'll find that a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life. . . . while building a bank account of his own.

Should your son be inclined to put himself that step ahead, have him get in touch with us. There may be a route available to him in your neighborhood. And along with it. . . the opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

Chrysler discounts begin on compact-size autos

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp.'s price discount "carnival" debuts this week with the firm offering a $200 rebate to those who buy one of its thousands of unsold compact cars.

While the first pricing gesture of the 1975 model year gets under way, 282,000 auto workers are on layoff because of sagging car sales.

Twenty car assembly plants and eight truck factories are closed this week in production cutbacks. Industry observers blame the sales slide in part on September price increases which averaged $450 per vehicle.

Chrysler's promotional campaign includes an additional $100 rebate to purchasers who trade in a subcompact Chevrolet Vega or Ford Pinto by Wednesday.

The $200 rebate is good for one week on the Dodge Dart Swinger and Plymouth Duster. A new trade-in target will begin Thursday.

Falling sales have left the nation's car dealers with a record 100-day stockpile of unsold models.

January layoffs will take their toll on 326,000 blue-collar auto workers, including 180,000 indefinitely, almost half of the industry's 685,000 hourly workers.

Chrysler's unprecedented discount program is not the price rollback that dealers and industry analysts have called for to stimulate sales. But it represents the first substantial discounts since the industry's sales slump began more than a year ago.

Some analysts predicted the other companies may follow Chrysler's unusual lead. But spokesmen for all the other auto makers said it won't happen.

BEAUTY must indeed be in the eye of the beholder, as they say, or in this case the limousine owner. Realistically hissing cobra is a radiator cap adorning a car that once belonged to silent film great Rudolph Valentino and which was given to him by Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks. It is one of a number of collector's items with a story in a collection of functional fine art at the Merle Norman Tower of Beauty at San Sylmar, Calif.

Auto workers dilemma portrayed in record

DETROIT (AP) — A new recording is aimed at making a folk hero out of the laid-off auto worker.

"Dear Mr. President, daddy just lost his job for awhile at the car-making factory," begins the lament, a narrative set to music. It features a 10-year-old girl whose family has endured the recession blues.

Paula Webb, the Ypsilanti, Mich., girl who sings "Please Mr. President," knows what she's talking about. Her mother, though not her father, and her uncle and grandmother all are laid-off Ford workers.

The song's author, Randall Carlisle, 25, is a radio newsman at CKLW in Windsor, Ont., who says he has written too many layoff bulletins. He says he thinks the record will capture the fancy of a country in recession.

Station officials said they plan to release the record nationwide this week.

On the record, Paula reads a letter to the President.

It was Paula's first professional job. Her father, Paul Webb, is a professional country and western singer.

"It's the first time I heard myself on a record, and I said, 'That isn't me,'" Paula said. "I liked it, but I don't think I would do it again. I want to be a majorette."

'NO SALE' was the reaction of Canadian Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie to involvement of a U.S. firm in a projected Canada-Cuba deal. Gillespie termed "intolerable interference" Litton Industries of California's reported order to a Canadian subsidiary, Cole Division of Litton Business Equipment, to reject a half-million-dollar office equipment sale to Cuba.

Dr. Mead spoke at the week-end opening of the World Federation for Mental Health Secretariat at the University of British Columbia.

She said killing is related to the way social systems are run. Changes in the way societies are governed can bring peace to long-warring communities and will be necessary if mankind is to survive the next 50 years, she said.

Gun ownership leads to high murder rate

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — The murder rate in the United States is high because it's common for the "good little man" to own a gun for protection against "big bad men," says Dr. Margaret Mead.

Get rid of guns, the noted anthropologist said, and the rate of killing can be cut down.

"England in the early part of the 19th century was one of the most violent and disorderly countries in the world," she said. "Then Sir Robert Peel invented the Bobbie."

"He got the idea to get big, patient, wise, oversize men who had never had to fight anybody in their lives and put them in uniform but without a gun. He took tinkers, tailors, soldiers, sailors — the whole range of occupations. The only requirement was that they must be big and patient."

"And in a relatively short time, London from being the most unruly city in Europe became the most ruly," she said.
